Flemming Warns Russia Could H-Bomb U. S. Cities

Mobilization Boss Calls For Buildup Geared To Threat

Talks To Decide If Russia Wants Peace Advocated

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Mobilization Director Arthur S. Flemming said today that Russia now "is capable of delivering suddenly without warning the most destructive weapon ever devised by man against chosen targets in the United States."

Flemming told a news conference that the statement, made in his quarterly report to President Eisenhower, referred to thermonuclear weapons—the hydrogen bomb.

Mobilization he said, must be geared to that threat.

The statement was broader and more positive than any previous official appraisal of Soviet H-bomb development, although the Atomic Energy Commission has spoken of Soviet tests of a "thermonuclear device."

No Speedup Plans Indicated

Questioned on this point later, Flemming said he had not intended in his report to the White House, "to add anything to the statements made by the AEC chairman—I feel that all official pronouncements on this matter should come from the commission."

Flemming did not indicate that there are plans to speed the nation's military buildup, although the National Security Council reportedly is re-evaluating the country's defense status in the light of the H-bomb hazard.

"Any proposal to Congress to change the defense program would have to come from the President," Flemming told reporters who questioned him about the report at a news conference.

Korean Buildup Complete

He said the needs of "partial mobilization"—the buildup undertaken to cope with the Korean crisis—"have been largely met." Production has leveled off at a rate of about 28 billion dollars a year in military hard goods deliveries, he reported.

The Flemming document stressed, more than any previous report by the Office of Defense Mobilization (ODM), preparedness measures to keep industry and government going in event of an atomic or hydrogen bomb assault. Flemming said the Soviet threat means that this country must have a defense mobilization program of size and scope sufficient to deter an aggressor or, if attack comes, "to enable us to fight and win."

Strikers Wage Struggle In ILA

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Idle longshoremen concerned themselves with an inter-union struggle today as the likelihood of presidential intervention lay over the strikebound East Coast shipping industry.

Groups within two locals of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) sought to reverse a vote by which the locals had voted earlier to bolt to the newly-formed AFL longshoremen's union.

The ILA was expelled from the AFL last month for failing to rid itself of corruption. Meanwhile, a presidential board named to study the strike which has tied up shipping from Portland, Me., to Hampton Roads, Va., drafted a report which may result in a non-strike injunction tomorrow.

Meetings were held today by a Brooklyn local of the Steamship Checkers and Clerks and a New York local of the Coopers Union. At meetings last week both locals voted to leave the ILA and join the AFL union. Those attending today, however, voted to remain in the ILA. The full membership was not represented at either meeting.

Finns Go To Polls

HELSINKI, Finland, Oct. 4 (AP)—Finland today held its third post-war municipal elections. When the polls closed tonight, it was estimated that between 35 and 45 percent of the 2,480,000 voters had cast ballots. The voting winds up tomorrow.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 4 (AP)—The American Association for the United Nations made public tonight a working paper study which calls for negotiations among the big powers to find out if Russia really wants peace.

The paper was prepared by a drafting committee of the association's research affiliate, the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace.

Group Has Consultative Status

The association (AUN) is a group of private citizens with consultative status at the U.N., dedicated to furthering the principles of the U.N. Charter within the framework of American policy. It has more than 100 chapters in the United States and is a member of a world federation of similar national associations.

The AUN said the drafters were Clark Eichelberger, its executive secretary; Arthur Holcombe, professor of government at Harvard; and Quincy Wright, professor of international law at the University of Chicago. Oscar De Lima executive vice president of the AUN also dealt with the final draft before it was submitted to the association's board of directors and governors.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Director

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is one of the directors of the organization.

The study arraigns Soviet imperialism but adds: "Whatever the Soviet Union's motives, any desire to negotiate and to confer should be examined. . . . If the Soviet government should not truly be seeking peace, then such an examination may at least lay bare the true situation, and may convince the free nations that the United States has done its best."

Talks between the envoys of the two countries, conferences such as the Korean truce and Berlin blockade talks, and Big Four meetings at top level were methods suggested.

Hurricane Spotted In South Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 4 (AP)—A growing hurricane with winds of 80 to 90 miles an hour whirled in the distant Atlantic today some 2,500 miles southeast of Florida.

The tropical storm, named Gail for the seventh letter of the alphabet, was located at 11 a.m. (EST) about 810 miles east of Guadeloupe, French Antilles.

An advisory from the San Juan, Puerto Rico, Weather Bureau said:

"Maximum winds are estimated to be about 80 to 90 miles per hour in a small area near the center, with gales extending outward 100 miles to the north and east, and 50 miles to the south and west. "The hurricane is expected to move in a direction between west-northwest and northwest at about 15 miles per hour during the next 18 hours and continue to increase in intensity."

Remnant From War

PINNER, England, Oct. 4 (AP)—Maj. Sedgwick Fookes gathered up the leaves in front of his home into a pile and flung them into a bonfire today.

He woke up in Mount Vernon Hospital with head and arm wounds. A German anti-personnel bomb apparently dropped during the war was among the rubbish and exploded.

FBI Prepares To Actively Enter Kidnap Case Today

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 4 (AP)—Has something gone wrong in the Bob Greenlease kidnapping case?

If the kidnapers haven't contacted the wealthy parents of the 6-year-old boy, as their spokesmen say, why haven't they?

If they have, as one rumor persists, despite a family denial, what's holding up completion of ransom negotiations and the child's return?

It has been seven days now since little Bobby was abducted from a private Catholic school by a woman who posed as the boy's aunt to the nun in charge.

Tomorrow the FBI can enter the case actively under the Lindbergh Act which presumes that if a kidnap victim is not returned within VOICES WARNING—Arthur S. Flemming (above), mobilization director, said yesterday Russia can deliver the hydrogen bomb "suddenly and without warning" on chosen American targets, and that U. S. mobilization should be geared to that threat.

Formal Charges Lodged Against Ex-Iran Premier

TEHRAN, Iran, Oct. 4 (AP)—Iran's deposed nationalist Premier, Mohammed Mossadegh, was formally charged today with trying to overthrow Iranian monarchy and with sparking the ill-fated uprising against the Shah which brought about his own downfall Aug. 16.

Conviction could result in a sentence of death by hanging for the wealthy 73-year-old lawyer and landowner whose wily tactics behind a facade of weeping and fainting brought him almost dictatorial powers over this Middle East nation, once rich because of its oil.

No Date Set For Trial

The long indictment was signed by an army prosecutor following an intensive investigation of the jailed ex-Premier. A military court martial will read the charges to Mossadegh and instruct him to choose a defense attorney for his trial, for which no date has yet been set.

The hawk-nosed Mossadegh faces another possible trial before a civil court on charges connected with his activities as head of the government before the fateful mid-August events which led to his downfall.

Government spokesmen have promised Mossadegh would be tried for leading the nation to bankruptcy.

The ex-Premier has been accused by his opponents also of flirting with the Communists and with Iran's big neighbor to the north, the Soviet Union, to push through his program.

Charges Are Listed

Today's formal charges accused Mossadegh of illegally dissolving Parliament's lower house, the Majlis, which had balked at handing him more powers, and of disobeying Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's order ousting him from the premiership and naming Zahedi in his place.

Refusing to obey the Shah's ouster decree, the charges said, Mossadegh then encouraged the anti-Shah street riots of Aug. 17—heavily supported by Communists—which forced the Shah and Queen Soraya to flee to Rome from a vacation in the north of Iran.

Yugoslavia To Stay Red, Tito Asserts

President Warns "Reactionaries" To Watch Their Step

BJELOVAR, Yugoslavia, Oct. 4 (AP)—President Tito served firm notice today that there will be no retreat by Yugoslavia from its Communist course.

Simultaneously, he cautioned "reactionaries"—who he said are still active and hopeful of return to power—that their efforts would be punished severely if pressed.

Tito, wearing a scarlet and gold-trimmed power blue uniform as the country's supreme commander, spoke before an audience officially estimated at nearly 200,000 here in this market city, center of the Croatian wheat growing area.

Fog Blurs Visibility

The chilled thousands, many of whom began assembling long before dawn, stood for hours awaiting his appearance for a ceremony officially marking the 10th anniversary of the formation of the Zagreb Corps of his partisan fighters in World War II.

Many of them never caught more than a glimpse of him. A thick fog blurred the visibility of the big stadium where the mass meeting was held. Only a comparative few of them could see Tito as he reviewed a guard of honor and chatted with youngsters who handed him bouquets of flowers.

By-Passes World Affairs

For the second Sunday in a row, Yugoslavia's chief by-passed international affairs in order to concentrate on domestic problems.

There have been reports, altogether unofficial, that he has been sidestepping discussion of foreign problems personally while awaiting a decision by the Big Three Western Powers—Britain, France and the United States—on methods for a possible settlement of Yugoslavia's 7-year-old feud with Italy on the future of Trieste.

Tito's deputy, Vice President Edvard Kardelj, declared in a simultaneous speech in Slovenia, however, that Yugoslavia is ready for "any reasonable compromise" on Trieste.

Warren Assumes Court Post Today

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4 (AP)—Earl Warren, his resignation as governor of California left behind on his Sacramento desk, departed today for Washington to become chief justice of the U. S.

One of Warren's last acts as governor was to pardon a man whose murder conviction in 1937 won him wide public notice.

Mrs. Warren, changing her plans at the last minute in order to see her husband sworn in when the court begins its fall term tomorrow, flew with the Republican governor. She planned to return in a few days to complete packing at the executive mansion in Sacramento.

President Eisenhower will attend the induction ceremony Monday, as will Mrs. Eisenhower. The President last Wednesday appointed Warren to the nation's top judicial post. Warren succeeds the late Fred M. Vinson who died Sept. 8.

Cole Changes Views On Defense Spending

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Republican chairman of the congressional Atomic Energy Committee said today he had changed his mind completely about defense spending in view of Russia's development of the H-bomb.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-NY) said in a television interview ("Meet the Press") that he is "ready to surrender" the principle of a balanced budget.

He said that information the committee has received leads him to believe the nation should spend another 15 to 25 billions on continental air defense.

An adequate overall defense budget, he said, might have to be some 10 billions higher than the present budget.

Reuter's Grave Visited

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (AP)—A steady stream of West Berliners filed past the grave of Lord Major Ernest Reuter in the Zehlendorf Forest cemetery today.

Some brought little bouquets to add to the huge pile of flowers which distinguish the mayor's resting place. Reuter died Tuesday and funeral services were held yesterday.

This is a semi-general view of the inside of tank showing twisted mass of steel reinforced wires and cement on the floor after the 15-inch wet concrete roof collapsed in Everett, Mass., killing one worker and injuring 19 others. The tank was being installed at the Esso Standard Oil Co. in Everett.

West Expected To Press Russia For Big 4 Talks

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Representatives of the United States, Britain and France will gather in London this week to turn a big corner in negotiations with Russia on the future of Germany.

The critical question to be decided is whether to make another attempt to persuade the Soviets to join a Big Four conference on the unification of Germany and on Austrian independence, or to accept Russia's week-old note on the subject as a conclusive rejection of all reasonable efforts to arrange a meeting.

May Exert Pressure

Thinking among U. S. officials here indicates that although Russia ignored proposals for a foreign ministers' conference at Lugano, Switzerland, Oct. 15 the Western Powers will press Moscow once more for an agreement to meet on terms acceptable to the West.

It remains to be determined, however, whether they will exert this pressure through new notes or through a diplomatic channel like the United Nations.

In any event, there is no real hope expressed here that the Reds will change their attitude and say "yes."

Diplomats report a curious state of affairs between Moscow and Washington right now as far as negotiations are concerned.

Russians Reluctant

The Russians seem to be extremely reluctant to undertake any serious negotiations at this time, perhaps because of reverses in Europe and the failure of the Reds to conquer Korea.

But the Eisenhower administration, which came into office with signs of adopting a tough policy toward Moscow, is more and more intrigued by the possibility of negotiations.

The Soviet note last week linked the German problem with insistence upon a five-power meeting, including Red China. It also brought in so many other issues as to set up conditions which the Western Powers promptly termed impossible.

Italian Train Runs Wild; Seven Killed

MASSA, Italy, Oct. 4 (AP)—A brakeless freight train streaked out of control through two stations today and crashed head-on into another train.

Seven persons were killed, including the engineers of both locomotives.

Virgilio Portualuppi, in charge of the runaway train, was pulled alive from the tangled wreckage six hours after the crash, but died later in a hospital.

The accident occurred at Filatiera, a small village near the northeast Italian city. Crews worked all day and into the night clearing away wreckage of scores of freight cars.

Hagerstown Man Saves Money But Loses Life

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 4 (AP)—Police theorized today that Gardner Calvin Bowers, 54, who died odd jobs in the area saved his money but lost his life in a struggle with thieves.

He was found fatally stabbed along some unused Pennsylvania Railroad tracks not far from the Hagerstown park.

Learns Chivalry Can Go Too Far

DES MOINES, Oct. 4 (AP)—Chivalry is fine but it can go too far, James Beeman, 23, of Des Moines has learned.

Beeman and another man were walking across the Des Moines River Bridge with a woman companion early yesterday when her purse fell from her coat pocket into the water.

Beeman jumped into the river to retrieve it. He got the purse but was met at the river bank by police, who had been summoned by the woman.

The drowned man was taken to jail and fined $5 on an intoxication charge.

Fastest Jet Will Serve On Carrier

THERMAL, Calif., Oct. 4 (AP)—Having set a new world's measured course speed record of 753.4 m.p.h., the Navy's F4D jet Skyray is being prepared for some sea duty aboard an aircraft carrier.

Lt. Cmdr. James B. Verdin, 35, piloted the Douglas flying wing interceptor on four blistering three kilometer passes along the shore of Southern California's Salton Sea yesterday to set the new mark. His fastest single pass was 760.414.

Verdin's performance in the Skyray brings the speed title back to the United States as he surpassed the eight-day-old mark of 737.3 by British Cmdr. Mike Lithgow by more than one per cent required by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale.

The commander had everything wide open as the white plane whipped over the course at an altitude estimated at less than 150 feet.

Before the speed run was scheduled, Verdin had been making carrier adaptability tests with the speedy fighter which also lands at a slow enough speed to allow its use on flat tops. Next comes some actual work on a carrier at sea, Douglas Aircraft Co., officials said.

Prince Oscar, Uncle Of Swedish King, Dies

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 4 (AP)—Prince Oscar Bernadotte, 93-year-old uncle of King Gustaf Adolf VI of Sweden, died here today. He had been bedridden for two months.

Symington Urges Defense Keyed To Retaliatory Force

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Asserting that Russia would have the advantage of initiative and surprise in an atomic war, Sen. Symington (D-Mo) said today the United States should put most of its defense chips on a devastating retaliatory force.

"Any yielding to a steady pressure to make this country an electronic fortress would seem fatal," he said in an address delivered at the ninth annual B'nai B'rith council here.

"The Maginot Line was a failure on the ground—its concept will never work in the air."

Symington, first secretary of the Air Force, declared America's atomic advantage is vanishing and

'Know-How' Aid Is Seen Saving Nation Billions

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (AP)—An American industrial expert said today President Eisenhower's administration wants to help European economy with "know-how instead of dollars."

"The project would substitute expert advice for dollars, saving U. S. taxpayers billions," said Fred Wilkie, brother of the late Wendell Wilkie, 1940 Republican presidential candidate.

Wilkie, who bears a close physical resemblance to his brother, told a reporter that the administration "is quietly sending up a trial balloon through the Council for International Progress in Management, located in New York, to test the idea."

"If the council finds out that the 'know-how' project can do the job better and cheaper, then the U. S. government—perhaps through the State Department—would officially take it over."

"It would become a major part of Eisenhower's foreign aid program," Wilkie said, "and could possibly replace the Foreign Operations Administration (FOA), headed by Harold E. Stassen."

"I talked with Stassen before I came over," Wilkie added, "and he indicated that he was in favor of the project as long as it would bolster the European economy at a saving to the American taxpayers."

Wilkie said the council was apparently set up and financed by the U. S. government with Eisenhower's approval to determine whether the know-how project would work.

American industrial and businessmen, experts in their fields, will find out on the spot in Europe if American technical aid will pay off better in the long run than dollars, he said, adding:

"That kind of thinking is the Republican way of doing business."

Buying Power Of Md. Farmers Takes Drop

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 4 (AP)—The U. S. Department of Agriculture said today a check indicates there was a "decrease in the purchasing power of Maryland farmers" from mid-August to mid-September.

The report said the All-Commodity Index of Prices Received by Maryland farmers dropped 16 points and the U. S. Prices Paid Index was down two points. This brought a drop of 5 points, to 95, in the ratio between the Maryland Prices Received Index and the U. S. Prices Paid Index.

West Germans Attend Thanksgiving Services

BOON, Germany, Oct. 4 (AP)—West Germans attended thanksgiving services today for bountiful crops.

Speaking in Bonn at one of the many harvest celebrations, agriculture Minister Wilhelm Niklas said the potato crops was a record 25 million tons. The grain harvest was 11,850,000 tons, or 400,000 tons more than last year.

India Troops, Repatriation Unit Blasted

Protest Says POW Guards Might Be Driven From Korea

PANMUNJOM, Monday, Oct. 5 (AP)—An official South Korean threat to drive India's troops out of Korea by armed force—a threat relayed through the U. S. 8th Army Command—cast a shadow today on the Korean War truce.

The strongly worded threat backed up a protest by South Korea's Foreign Ministry of the way Indian troops are handling nearly 23,000 Chinese and Korean prisoners of war in their custody in the demilitarized zone.

These prisoners—now key figures in a psychological war of communism versus democracy—have said they do not want to return to Red rule. They are being held in the neutral zone so that Red teams may interview them and try to persuade them to change their minds. New developments threatened to again delay the start of these explanations for as much as four weeks.

During recent disturbances, Indian guards killed three of these prisoners and wounded 10.

Yesterday, South Korea's acting foreign minister, Cho Chung Whan, sent an official protest through Gen. Maxwell Taylor, U. S. 8th Army commander, to India's Maj. Gen. S.P.P. Thorat.

"The acts recently committed by the (Neutral Nations Repatriation) Commission and the Indian armed forces are clear-cut evidence of their pro-Communist character," the protest read.

"I wish to solemnly warn you, on behalf of the government of the Republic of Korea, that if the commission and the Indian troops do not rectify immediately the evil acts being committed, the Republic of Korea will be regrettably forced to send their armed forces to drive the irresponsible Indian troops out of Korea."

The explanations to the nearly 23,000 Reds and by the Allies to 359 retreating captives of the Reds, including 23 Americans, were to have started Sept. 26.

Armistice terms call for the explanations to end Dec. 24. This point showed signs today of growing into a boiling controversy.

The U. N. insists that the explanations end Dec. 24. But the continuing delays in getting them started added to the Red headaches in trying to interview individually nearly 23,000 prisoners. The Reds want the delayed time tacked on the other end.

Yesterday, Lt. Gen. K.S. Thimayya, Indian chief of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission, agreed the truce terms do not give the commission power to rule on an extension and said he would not again ask the U. N. Command for one.

Ex-Egypt Leader Spared Gallows

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 4 (AP)—Egypt's ruling Revolutionary Council tonight commuted the death sentence on ex-Premier Ibrahim Abdel Hadi to life imprisonment.

A special three-man court Friday condemned Hadi to die on the gallows for high treason and conspiracy with a foreign power against the security of the state.

At the same time the Egyptian government announced tonight a minor reshuffle in the Cabinet of President Mohamed Naguib.

Col. Zakariah Modieddine, chief of army intelligence, was named minister of the interior replacing Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser who will retain the post of vice premier.

Col. Gamal Salem was named minister of communications.

The Revolutionary Council announced the death sentence for Ahmed Mohamed Awad, an Egyptian electrician formerly employed by the British garrison in the Suez Canal zone, also had been commuted to life imprisonment at hard labor.

President Eisenhower will attend the induction ceremony Monday, as will Mrs. Eisenhower. The President last Wednesday appointed Warren to the nation's top judicial post. Warren succeeds the late Fred M. Vinson who died Sept. 8.

Cole Changes Views On Defense Spending

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Republican chairman of the congressional Atomic Energy Committee said today he had changed his mind completely about defense spending in view of Russia's development of the H-bomb.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-NY) said in a television interview "Meet the Press" that he is "ready to surrender" the principle of a balanced budget.

He said that information the committee has received leads him to believe the nation should spend another 15 to 25 billions on continental air defense.

An adequate overall defense budget, he said, might have to be some 10 billions higher than the present budget.

Reuter's Grave Visited

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (AP)—A steady stream of West Berliners filed past the grave of Lord Major Ernest Reuter in the Zehlendorf Forest cemetery today.

Some brought little bouquets to add to the huge pile of flowers which distinguish the mayor's resting place. Reuter died Tuesday and funeral services were held yesterday.

Ruins Following Tank Collapse

This is a semi-general view of the inside of tank showing twisted mass of steel reinforced wires and cement on the floor after the 15-inch wet concrete roof collapsed in Everett, Mass., killing one worker and injuring 19 others. The tank was being installed at the Esso Standard Oil Co. in Everett.

West Expected To Press Russia For Big 4 Talks

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Representatives of the United States, Britain and France will gather in London this week to turn a big corner in negotiations with Russia on the future of Germany.

The critical question to be decided is whether to make another attempt to persuade the Soviets to join a Big Four conference on the unification of Germany and on Austrian independence, or to accept Russia's week-old note on the subject as a conclusive rejection of all reasonable efforts to arrange a meeting.

May Exert Pressure

Thinking among U. S. officials here indicates that although Russia ignored proposals for a foreign ministers' conference at Lugano, Switzerland, Oct. 15 the Western Powers will press Moscow once more for an agreement to meet on terms acceptable to the West.

It remains to be determined, however, whether they will exert this pressure through new notes or through a diplomatic channel like the United Nations.

In any event, there is no real hope expressed here that the Reds will change their attitude and say "yes."

Diplomats report a curious state of affairs between Moscow and Washington right now as far as negotiations are concerned.

Russians Reluctant

The Russians seem to be extremely reluctant to undertake any serious negotiations at this time, perhaps because of reverses in Europe and the failure of the Reds to conquer Korea.

But the Eisenhower administration, which came into office with signs of adopting a tough policy toward Moscow, is more and more intrigued by the possibility of negotiations.

The Soviet note last week linked the German problem with insistence upon a five-power meeting, including Red China. It also brought in so many other issues as to set up conditions which the Western Powers promptly termed impossible.

Italian Train Runs Wild; Seven Killed

MASSA, Italy, Oct. 4 (AP)—A brakeless freight train streaked out of control through two stations today and crashed head-on into another train.

Seven persons were killed, including the engineers of both locomotives.

Vigilio Portaluppi, in charge of the runaway train, was pulled alive from the tangled wreckage six hours after the crash, but died later in a hospital.

The accident occurred at Filatiera, a small village near this northeast Italian city. Crews worked all day and into the night clearing away wreckage of scores of freight cars.

Hagerstown Man Saves Money But Loses Life

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 4 (AP)—Police theorized today that Gardner Calvin Bowers, 54, who did odd jobs in the area saved his money but lost his life in a struggle with thieves.

He was found fatally stabbed along some unused Pennsylvania Railroad tracks not far from the Hagerstown park.

Police said there was evidence of a struggle. Bowers' wallet and papers and tools were spread around. However, in an inner shirt there was $8, leading police to believe his attackers got no money.

Learns Chivalry Can Go Too Far

DES MOINES, Oct. 4 (AP)—Chivalry is fine but it can go too far, James Beeman, 23, of Des Moines has learned.

Beeman and another man were walking across the Des Moines River Bridge with a woman companion early yesterday when her purse fell from her coat pocket into the water.

Beeman jumped into the river to retrieve it. He got the purse but was met at the river bank by police, who had been summoned by the woman.

The drenched man was taken to jail and fined $5 on an intoxication charge.

Fastest Jet Will Serve On Carrier

THERMAL, Calif., Oct. 4 (AP)—Having set a new world's measured course speed record of 753.4 m.p.h., the Navy's F4D jet Skyraider is being prepared for some sea duty aboard an aircraft carrier.

Lt. Cmdr. James B. Verdin, 35, piloted the Douglas flying wing in a slow enough speed to allow its use on flat tops. Next comes some actual work on a carrier at sea, Douglas Aircraft Co., officials said.

Verdin's performance in the Skyraider brings the speed title back to the United States as he surpassed the eight-day-old mark of 737.3 by British Cmdr. Mike Lithgow by more than one per cent reported by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale.

The commander had everything wide open as the white plane whipped over the course at an altitude estimated at less than 150 feet.

Before the speed run was scheduled, Verdin had been making carrier adaptability tests with the speedy fighter which also lands at a slow enough speed to allow its use on flat tops. Next comes some actual work on a carrier at sea, Douglas Aircraft Co., officials said.

Prince Oscar, Uncle Of Swedish King, Dies

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 4 (AP)—Prince Oscar Bernadotte, 93-year-old uncle of King Gustaf Adolf VI of Sweden, died here today. He had been bedridden for two months.

Symington Urges Defense Keyed To Retaliatory Force

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Asserting that Russia would have the advantage of initiative and surprise in an atomic war, Sen. Symington (D-Mo) said today the United States should put most of its defense chips on a devastating retaliatory force.

"Any yielding to a steady pressure to make this country an electronic fortress would seem fatal," he said in an address delivered at the ninth annual B'nai B'rith council here.

"The Maginot Line was a failure on the ground—its concept will never work in the air."

Symington, first secretary of the Air Force, declared America's atomic advantage is vanishing and

'Know-How' Aid Is Seen Saving Nation Billions

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (AP)—An American industrial expert said today President Eisenhower's administration wants to help European economy with "know-how instead of dollars."

"The project would substitute expert advice for dollars, saving U. S. taxpayers billions," said Fred Wilkie, brother of the late Wendell Wilkie, 1940 Republican presidential candidate.

Wilkie, who bears a close physical resemblance to his brother, told a reporter that the administration "is quietly sending up a trial balloon through the Council for International Progress in Management, located in New York, to test the idea."

"If the council finds out that the 'know-how' project can do the job better and cheaper, then the U. S. government—perhaps through the State Department—would officially take it over."

"It would become a major part of Eisenhower's foreign aid program," Wilkie said, "and could possibly replace the Foreign Operations Administration (FOA), headed by Harold E. Stassen."

"I talked with Stassen before I came over," Wilkie added, "and he indicated that he was in favor of the project as long as it would bolster the European economy at a saving to the American taxpayers."

Wilkie said the council was apparently set up and financed by the U. S. government with Eisenhower's approval to determine whether the know-how project would work.

American industrial and businessmen, experts in their fields, will find out on the spot in Europe if American technical aid will pay off better in the long run than dollars, he said, adding:

"That kind of thinking is the Republican way of doing business."

Buying Power Of Md. Farmers Takes Drop

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 4 (AP)—The U. S. Department of Agriculture said today a check indicates there was a "decrease in the purchasing power of Maryland farmers" from mid-August to mid-September.

The report said the All-Commodity Index of Prices Received by Maryland farmers dropped 16 points and the U. S. Prices Paid Index was down two points. This brought a drop of 5 points, to 95, in the ratio between the Maryland Prices Received Index and the U. S. Prices Paid Index.

India Troops, Repatriation Unit Blasted

Protest Says POW Guards Might Be Driven From Korea

PANMUNJOM, Monday, Oct. 5 (AP)—An official South Korean threat to drive India's troops out of Korea by armed force—a threat relayed through the U. S. 8th Army Command—cast a shadow today on the Korean War truce.

The strongly worded threat backed up a protest by South Korea's Foreign Ministry of the way Indian troops are handling nearly 23,000 Chinese and Korean prisoners of war in their custody in the demilitarized zone.

These prisoners—now key figures in a psychological war of communism versus democracy—have said they do not want to return to Red rule. They are being held in the neutral zone so that Red teams may interview them and try to persuade them to change their minds. New developments threatened to again delay the start of these explanations for as much as four weeks.

During recent disturbances, Indian guards killed three of these prisoners and wounded 10.

Yesterday, South Korea's acting foreign minister, Cho Chung Whan, sent an official protest through Gen. Maxwell Taylor, U. S. 8th Army commander, to India's Maj. Gen. S.P.P. Thorat.

"The acts recently committed by the (Neutral Nations Repatriation) Commission and the Indian armed forces are clear-cut evidence of their pro-Communist character," the protest read.

"I wish to solemnly warn you, on behalf of the government of the Republic of Korea, that if the commission and the Indian troops do not rectify immediately the evil acts being committed, the Republic of Korea will be regretfully forced to send their armed forces to drive the irresponsible Indian troops out of Korea."

The explanations to the nearly 23,000 Reds and by the Allies to 359 reluctant captives of the Reds, including 23 Americans, were to have started Sept. 26.

Armistice terms call for the explanations to end Dec. 24. This point showed signs today of growing into a boiling controversy.

The U.N. insists that the explanations end Dec. 24. But the continuing delays in getting them started added to the Red headaches in trying to interview individually nearly 23,000 prisoners. The Reds want the delayed time tacked on the other end.

Yesterday, Lt. Gen. K.S. Thimayya, Indian chief of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission, agreed the truce terms do not give the commission power to rule on an extension and said he would not again ask the U.N. Command for one.

Ex-Egypt Leader Spared Gallows

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 4 (AP)—Egypt's ruling Revolutionary Council tonight commuted the death sentence on ex-Premier Ibrahim Abdel Hadi to life imprisonment.

A special three-man court Friday condemned Hadi to die on the gallows for high treason and conspiracy with a foreign power against the security of the state.

At the same time the Egyptian government announced tonight a minor reshuffle in the Cabinet of President Mohamed Naguib.

Col. Zakariah Modieddine, chief of army intelligence, was named minister of the interior replacing Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser who will retain the post of vice premier.

Col. Gamal Salem was named minister of communications.

The Revolutionary Council announced the death sentence for Ahmed Mohamed Awad, an Egyptian electrician formerly employed by the British garrison in the Suez Canal zone, also had been commuted to life imprisonment at hard labor.

The Eckhart P.T.A. has invited visitors to arrive at 7:30 p. m. to meet the school personnel and inspect the school.

of Chicago, a member of the executive board of the National Federation of Sisterhoods.

Buses Requested To Stop Using George St. Depot

A request has been made by the City of Cumberland to bus lines using the George Street terminal facilities that they cease operations in that traffic-congested location on or before December 1.

Police Commissioner John J. Long said yesterday that the congestion occasioned by the use of North George street as a bus terminal must be terminated.

In a letter from City Attorney Thomas B. Finan to the Emory Bus Lines and the Osgood Bus Lines, attention is called to previous requests that a new location for a terminal be opened. It is recalled that the Blue Ridge Bus Co. has offered space at its "off street" terminal "rent free" for a trial period of the facilities there.

The City, however, Finan makes clear, is not wanting to compel the other bus lines to use the Blue Ridge terminal, but is insisting that some other place than George Street be established within the next two months.

"I assure you," Finan writes, "that the City is not acting in an arbitrary manner x x x as we have spent almost a year in an effort to work out some agreeable solution."

Yugoslavs Tour Area Orchards

Six visitors from Yugoslavia were in the Cumberland area last week as part of a large group of foreign orchardists and agricultural specialists touring the United States under sponsorship of the Mutual Security Administration. They inspected orchards, packing plants and storage facilities at Romney and Paw Paw. The entire group was entertained at dinner in Lark Inn, Paw Paw, by Henry W. Miller of Consolidated Orchards Wednesday evening. They were luncheon guests at the New Century in Romney.

One of the Yugoslav representatives, Milored Stojkovic, was too ill to join in the Romney and Paw Paw tour. Other countries sending specialists to the U. S. for the current tour of apple and other fruit centers in Oregon, Washington, California, Michigan, West Virginia, Maryland and New York were Austria, Denmark, France, Germany, Portugal, Turkey and Lebanon.

Accompanying the foreign delegation was Leo S. Stanley, of Michigan State, representing the U. S., and four interpreters: Genevieve Laurant, Francis Humann, Georg Gabriel and Helmut Theiss. Longest name of any visitor was Luiz Maria Carrapatoza Lopez de Fonseca of Portugal.

Prof. Piccard Gets Noisy Welcome

CASTELLAMMARE DI STABIA, Italy, Oct. 2 (AP)—Prof. Auguste Piccard, who plunged to a record of nearly two miles below the sea Wednesday, came back to a noisy welcome in this Naples Bay village tonight.

The slender Swiss scientist and his son Jacques returned aboard the Italian corvette Tenace along with the odd-shaped bathyscafe they rode down 10,339 feet to the bottom of the Mediterranean. They made the record-breaking descent off the island of Ponza, about 50 miles west of Naples, in the Tyrrhenian sea trough, probably the deepest point in the Mediterranean.

Since the 15th century, forts have been built on the Gold coast of Africa by the Portuguese, Spanish, Dutch, English, Danes and Swedes.

Night Hunters Kill Two Steers At Town Creek

Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke took a "verbal shot" Saturday at spotlight hunters who shot two young Hereford steers in the Town Creek district.

Thomas A. Wilson, owner of the cattle, estimated the loss at more than $300 and said the steers were left lying in a field after being shot. Another farmer living a short distance off U. S. Route 40 reported that night hunters fired at a deer standing within a few yards of his home.

During the past few weeks, Minke stated, spotlight hunters have been active in the eastern section of Allegany County, mostly in the vicinity of Flintstone and Green Ridge. Farmers are the principal complainants.

As a result, game wardens have been compelled to work day and night since there are many daylight violations regarding other species of upland game.

Minke pointed out that wardens have succeeded in nabbing two cars operating with spotlights and high-powered rifles in the possession of hunters. Five drew fines of $100 each within the past two weeks, he said.

Woman's Group Will Sponsor Tour Of U. N.

The International Relations Group of the Woman's Civic Club is sponsoring a tour to the United Nations headquarters in New York which will be open to the public.

Mrs. Lloyd Buchanan, chairman, said the schedule calls for departure at 5:45 a. m. Thursday, October 29, on the B&O's "Columbian." The train, she continued, will arrive in New York at 1:30 p. m. that day. Reservations for the two-night stay in New York are being made with the Victoria Hotel.

The round-trip train travel will be by reserved coach seats, Mrs. Buchanan explained. A Baltimore and Ohio motor coach will conduct the travelers from the Jersey City terminal to the hotel and special bus transfers will be in effect between the hotel and United Nations.

Conducted tours of the United Nations building and activities will highlight the trip. The return to Cumberland will be made Saturday, October 31.

Reservations must be in by October 10, she continued, adding that persons interested should get in touch with her so the proper arrangements can be made. M. W. Grove is handling the railroad transportation arrangements.

About three and one-half pounds of wool are used in a man's suit.

Man's Legs Amputated After RR Mishap

A Baltimore and Ohio Railroad worker, employed less than two weeks as a brakeman, had both his legs amputated as the result of an accident minutes after he reported for work Wednesday night.

The man, identified as Stanley Harman, 40, of LaVale, was starting his second week of employment when he reported for work at the "West Hump" of the railroad at 11 p. m. Wednesday.

Railroad officials said he was riding a detached boxcar, minutes after he reported for work, when the car unexpectedly caught up with a three-car "cut" in front of it and crushed his legs between them. B&O officials said the accident was due in large part to his inexperience.

Harman was taken to Memorial Hospital in an ambulance and his left leg was removed about halfway between the hip and knee that same evening. It was thought the right leg could be saved, but it also had to be removed Friday night in about the same place as the other. Attaches reported him in "good" condition yesterday evening.

A former employee of the Celanese plant, Harman has resided here 13 or 14 years. He was forced to seek other employment when the Dye House of the Celanese plant closed down recently, and for a while he was employed by the Chrysler Corporation in Cleveland.

He returned here the latter part of August and his B&O employment was the first he had obtained.

His wife is the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Carwell of Hendricks, W. Va. They have a seven-year-old daughter, Joan.

Governor To Open Garrett's Autumn Glory Time Today

Governor Theodore R. McKeldin, whose custom it is to designate a week in October as "Autumn Glory Time", has issued a proclamation setting aside October 5-18 this year as the special period during which it is hoped many Marylanders, as well as guests from other states, will visit Western Maryland and view the beauty of its Fall scenery all the way from Hancock through Cumberland to Garrett County.

The Governor will go to Oakland today where he and Mrs. McKeldin will be guests of the Mountain Top Chamber of Commerce. Maryland's first citizens will take a look at the county's first tree farm, 10 miles from Oakland near the Potomac River. While there, the Governor will present a plaque and citation to Virgil Steyer, owner of the farm.

Industrial Arts Teachers Offered Course At Hancock

Industrial arts teachers in the Allegany County public school system may be able to take some courses offered by the College of Special and Continuing Studies at the University of Maryland.

J. D. Lonnholm, supervisor of vocational, industrial and adult education, has written to the teachers to see which, if any such courses interest them. If sufficient interest is found here and in other Western Maryland counties the classes may be offered on Saturday mornings at Hancock High School.

"Autumn Glory Time," says Governor McKeldin, in his proclamation, "will be at the height of its beauty during the period October 5 to 18." The proclamation further suggests that as many as possible "see and enjoy the beauty to be unfolded."

This is the third year the Governor has issued such a proclamation, and Earle R. Poorbaugh, director of the State Department of Information, says the promotion of "Autumn Glory Time" has resulted in extending Western Maryland's vacation period six weeks. Press, radio, and television, together with the State Department of Information, the Deep Creek Lake Promotion Council, and the Garrett County Turkey Growers' Association, have combined to make "Autumn Glory Time" a real event on Maryland's yearly calendar.

Commercial Travelers Plan Ladies Night

B36s To Be Deployed To Remote Bases In Test Of 'Global Mobility'

Squadron Will Go To Thule, Another To North Africa

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Strategic Air Command will deploy two squadrons of its B36 intercontinental bombers to remote corners of the world later this month in a test of "global mobility."

One squadron (a squadron of heavy bombers usually is 10 planes) will wing to the arctic base of Thule on the northwest coast of Greenland.

The other will head eastward to a "forward base" in North Africa, presumably one of the three new airdromes now operated by the United States in French Morocco.

The 6th Bombardment Wing at Walker Air Force Base, Roswell, N. M., will send a squadron to Greenland for a week of training exercises in the Polar region.

From the 7th Bombardment Wing at Carswell Air Force Base, Tex., will go the squadron destined for North Africa. That unit will be gone for about 11 days.

No definite date for departure of the squadrons was disclosed at this time.

Although a few individual B36s have landed at Thule during recent months, this will be the first time a formation of the Convair bombers has used the base in a full-scale test of its capabilities to handle a force of heavy bombers as it would if Thule, only about 900 miles from the North Pole, should be used as a springboard for strikes at Eurasia in a war.

Thule, with a 10,000-foot runway, is now fully operational after three years of intensive construction. Special fuel facilities for gassing up quickly a whole unit of the giant heavy bombers, which use both standard and jet fuel, are provided. Of nine hangars at the arctic airfield, six can accommodate the 230-foot wingspread of the B36s if they need repairs or other service which can not be done outdoors.

When the extreme cold (50 or 60 degrees below zero) closes in on Thule the engines of the aircraft parked in the open are started up periodically to prevent "cold soak" which chills metal to brittleness, congeals even winterized lubricants and produces ignition trouble.

The visit of a squadron of heavy bombers also will provide Thule's defenders with opportunity to train in radar detection and tracking of a formation of large aircraft, such as might be expected if the Red air force aimed a strike across the Arctic at Canada and the United States.

President And Wife Receive Communion

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower received communion today at regular services at the National Presbyterian Church, to which they belong.

As they left the church, a murmur of applause broke out among the several hundred persons waiting at the street corner for a glimpse of the couple. Both the President and the first lady smiled and waved before entering their limousine to return to the White House.

Secretary of State Dulles was among those attending the services, but did not arrive with the President.

Prominent Woman Scientist Succumbs

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4 (AP)—Word has been received here of the death in Denver of Dr. Florence Rena Sabin, a prominent scientist and member of the Johns Hopkins Medical School faculty for 23 years.

She died of a heart attack yesterday at 82.

Dr. Sabin, well known for medical research and work in public health reforms, was an assistant in anatomy at Hopkins until 1925 when she became the first woman appointed to the staff of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research in New York.

Cuban Swimmer First To Make It From Mainland To Catalina Island

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Calif., Oct. 4 (AP)—Cuban Jose Cortinas early today completed the first successful swim of the Catalina Channel from the mainland to Santa Catalina Island.

He had been in the Pacific 32 hours 10 minutes 35-25 seconds when he crawled ashore near Indian Rock at the west end of the island. Cortinas, 36, of Havana, entered the water at Point Vicente near San Pedro at 5:35 p.m. Friday.

Other swimmers have gone the distance from the island to the mainland, but Cortinas is the first to make it in the opposite direction.

His sponsor, Charles Hale, North Hollywood, Calif., on the accompanying cruiser Chuckaluck, said Jose swam the first 17 of the 22 miles distance in 16 hours but then encountered the tricky currents as he neared the island. It required about 12 more hours to make the next three miles as Cortinas had

Rocket Expert Tells How Mars Could Be Reached

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 4 (AP)—An Army rocket expert described today how an expedition of 50 earthmen could spend 400 days exploring the planet Mars.

In sober, scientific language, Werner von Braun, German rocket developer now with the U. S. Army, presented calculations for the expedition which he said would cost no more than "those for a minor military expedition extending over a limited theater of war."

In a slim book of 90 pages titled "The Mars Project" and published by the University of Illinois Press, he gave this blueprint:

Forty-nine ferry vessels propelled by three-stage rockets would take parts, supplies, fuel and men to a point 1,075 miles above the earth. At that point they would freely circle the earth like a tiny moon while 10 space ships were assembled and readied for the big trip.

A total of 950 flights over eight months time would be required to ferry sufficient supplies and fuel to the circling takeoff station. The

Sale Of Irish Pub To End Long Strike

DUBLIN, Ireland, Oct. 4 (AP)—An auctioneer's gavel will come down Oct. 30 to sound the end of the longest strike in Irish trade unionism and perhaps in the world.

Downey's pub on Upper Georges St., Dun Laoghaire, has been on strike since 1939 when the late Pat Downey, the owner, dismissed a barman. Downey celebrated each anniversary of the strike by bearding his premises with bunting and the drinks were on the house.

The pickets were always invited to join in the festivities, but they always declined to enter. So, the drinks were served on the picket line.

On May 30 Downey died. Val Murphy, who had picketed the place since his dismissal laid aside his placard and stepped inside to offer sympathy. Mrs. Downey decided to keep the bar going and the pickets came back on duty. Finally, it was announced that the pub would be sold at auction. The Irish National Union of Vintners, Grocers and Allied Trade Assistants stated that once the premises changed hands the strike will end.

Hickenlooper Opposes Baring More A-Secrets

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) said today there may be more danger than benefit in any move to tell the American people more than they already know about atomic and hydrogen bomb developments.

As the top Republican senator on the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee, Hickenlooper thus took issue with some other administration officials who have been urging President Eisenhower to let the public in on more atomic secrets.

"The American people have been given the fundamental facts of the tremendous power of atomic weapons," Hickenlooper said in an interview. "I don't know much more that could be said without going into technical data which would benefit our enemies."

"Certainly any action to reveal the extent of our stockpiling of bombs would be of great service to our enemies."

Eisenhower told a White House news conference last Wednesday that when he has time to sort out in his own mind how to approach the subject he intends to be very frank in telling the people the conclusions he has reached on the relationship of world tensions to the growing destructiveness of armaments.

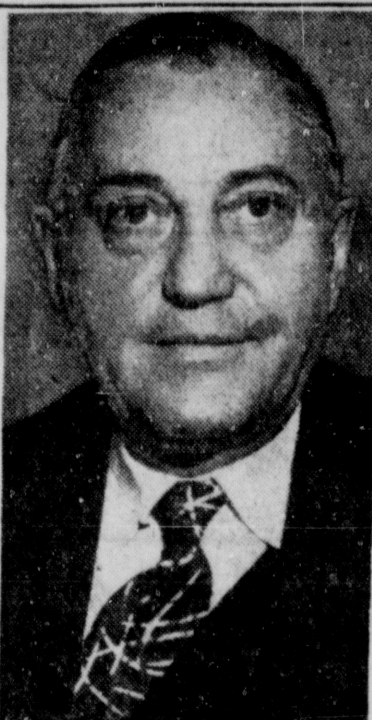

The President added, perhaps significantly, that frightened people can not make good decisions, and this country didn't want to frighten anyone to death in this world.

The views Hickenlooper expressed today were in sharp contrast with those of Sen. Pastore (D-R.I.), another member of the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee. Pastore said recently that the government ought to "take some calculated risks so that we may be better informed."

He said that if the United States expects other nations to stand with it against aggression it would be "perilous folly to keep secret from them sufficient data for use in an emergency."

Baby Elephant With Broken Legs Happy In Sling

CHICAGO, Oct. 4 (AP)—Melinda, Brookfield Zoo's 1-year-old elephant who broke both hind legs last week, did very nicely in her new sling today.

"Far from showing annoyance at being suspended with her back legs off the ground, she's happy," said zoo Director Robert Bean.

Bean said that 425-pound Melinda has been a very unhappy little elephant since she cracked the femurs of her hind legs by dragging them down a cleared ramp into a shallow moat last Wednesday.

After a diagnosis was made from three sets of X-rays, Melinda's hind quarters were suspended Thursday in a modified horse sling to take the weight off her cracked bones. But Melinda squealed in discomfort, so the sling was taken off and she was kept lying down.

A tailor-made sling was fitted yesterday. Melinda spent a comfortable night in it. Today, Bean said, she gurgled, tossed her head over her back and squirted water through her trunk.

Liner's Passengers Reach N.Y. By Train

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Some 260 travellers from Europe arrived in New York by train today.

They were passengers from the liner Britannic which was diverted from its normal docking here by the longshoremen's strike and instead landed Friday at Halifax, N. S.

A special train with sealed baggage car was met by 30 customs inspectors who set up shop in the Grand Central Terminal baggage room. Immigration formalities were conducted enroute.

The rest of the ship's 860 passengers were due later on other trains.

After discharging its passengers the Britannic sailed from Halifax on a leisurely "pleasure trip" for the crew. It will arrive here Tuesday or Wednesday, by which time pier gangs probably will be back at work under the Taft-Hartley law. On Thursday it will sail for England again.

German Cab Drivers' Strike Strands Yanks

MAINZ, Germany, Oct. 4 (AP)—Scores of American soldiers were stranded here after curfew last night when city cab drivers went on a protest strike against raids by U. S. military police and German authorities for army scrip and cigarettes.

Police said some soldiers hurled beer bottles and rocks at German taxis which refused to take them back to their barracks. The stranded soldiers were later returned in army trucks. The cab strike began shortly before the 1 a.m. curfew hour and ended two hours later.

The raids were staged throughout the state of Rhineland-Palatinate, but the only incidents reported occurred here. The raids are held periodically against cab drivers who illegally accept military scrip or American cigarettes instead of German marks for fares.

Nation's Longest Major Transit Strike Near End

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 4 (AP)—A tentative wage settlement reached near midnight last night brought hopes today for early resumption of Key System service, ending the nation's longest major transit strike.

The tentative agreement was reached on the 72nd day of the walkout which affected an area of 750,000 population and severed local and intercity rail and bus communication of 11 cities on the eastern shore of San Francisco Bay. The workers walked out July 24.

Terms of the settlement were not disclosed pending a meeting of 1,600 striking AFL Carriers' Union members Tuesday morning to vote on ratification.

However, late yesterday E. C. Houghton of Los Angeles, board chairman of the Key System Transit Lines, offered a 17-cent hourly two-stage pay increase in a private meeting with Vern Stambaugh, president of the union's Division No. 192.

The company's best previous offer was 15 cents an hour for workers receiving from $1.68 to $1.96 an hour. The union had scaled its demands down to a 20-cent hourly boost.

Company officials said that if the union members approved the proposed contract Tuesday morning bus service perhaps could be resumed that afternoon.

But it may take two or three days more to restore service on commuter facilities which carry an average of 27,000 commuters daily across the San Francisco Bay Bridge between San Francisco and the East Bay cities.

Western Reports Branded 'Holmes Detective Stories'

MOSCOW, Oct. 4 (AP)—The weekly Soviet magazine New Times says Western reports indicating Russia had something to do with the disappearance of British diplomat Donald MacLean, or his wife and children, or his colleague Guy Burgess are nothing but "modern Sherlock Holmes detective stories."

The mysterious vanishing of the two diplomats 27 months ago and of MacLean's American-born wife, Melinda, and their three children Sept. 11 has "not the slightest connection with the Soviet Union," the foreign policy magazine declared in the first Soviet comment on the case.

New Times accused Western diplomats and intelligence officials of using the case to aggravate the international situation and to launch another "slander campaign against the Soviet Union."

(European officials have said that, although the trails of the whole missing group end with no clues, they are convinced MacLean and Burgess and the MacLean family vanished behind the Iron Curtain.)

Under the title "Modern Sherlock Holmes in International arena," the magazine gives an account of the case and then comments:

"A section of the American and English press began to make innuendoes that at the time of their disappearance the two diplomats possessed 'confidential documents.' And, although official representatives of English authority, in answer to questions by the newspapers, were obliged to declare there were 'absolutely no facts' corroborating these great fabrications, and that 'the disappearance of official documents' was the purest invention, the base campaign was continued."

MacLean and Burgess disappeared at the beginning of a week-end in France May 25, 1951.

Big families are back in style

—today more couples are having three, four, five—even six children

SINCE 1940, America has had the largest increase of population of any similar period in its history. More people have been getting married and they have been having more children. We are adding over 10,000 new babies to our population every single day!

More children and bigger families are just two of the many great changes we've seen in the last decade. We're also enjoying greater health and longer life than ever before. We're buying more homes—moving to the suburbs—giving our children more and better education. These changes have brought about new needs and new responsibilities.

And life insurance is keeping pace and is constantly growing more flexible to meet our new needs.

To aid families in planning for the future the life insurance companies have created a number of plans like the family income policy. It provides, in addition to the basic insurance, low-cost protection for the children's growing years. Such plans, largely a development of the last twenty years, have grown by three hundred per cent in the last decade alone and today account for more than twenty billion dollars of family protection.

Hundreds of thousands of families own life insurance to assure funds for their children's education. Still others are using the values of their basic policies to provide income for their own retirement years.

A suggestion: Have your needs or circumstances changed? Have you looked over your life insurance to see how it stacks up with your present way of living and the goals you and your family have set for yourselves?

Something New In Korea

Something unprecedented in the history of warfare—or, more accurately, that aspect of warfare having to do with the exchange of prisoners—is under way in Korea. The exchange of prisoners who were willing to be repatriated is complete, except for those still unaccounted for by the Communists. Now the period for “explanations” to prisoners who have refused to return home is under way.

Never before have prisoners of war been so much as asked whether they wanted to be repatriated. It has always been assumed that they would want to return to their own countries. The assumption was natural and warranted, except in very special circumstances. But the Korean War was not like the wars that justified this assumption—because the Communists forced men to fight against their will and against their convictions.

These men, whether they surrendered or deserted to UN forces, did not want to go back and the U. S. high command would not agree to coercion. So the armistice provided that both sides could try to persuade men who once wore their uniforms to come home again.

The explanation process promises to be a difficult one at best. It could be dangerous if the thousands of prisoners turned over to the Korean Repatriation Commission by the UN should get out of hand. It is easy to believe that Indian military authorities, whose troops police the operation, are nervous. Many of the prisoners are resentful men, and India is not regarded as anti-Communist.

The letter put in the hands of the prisoners by the commission showed a pro-Communist slant. The attitude it reflected was the opposite of neutral. The anti-Red prisoners had a right to be incensed.

Nevertheless, the explanation period has been agreed to and is now under way. Every American hopes that the 23 Americans, the sole Briton and the 335 South Koreans who have refused repatriation will be persuaded to change their minds, and that the 23,000 Chinese and North Koreans entrusted to the commission will not.

Card Of Thanks

It is natural that Americans should sometimes be irritated and bewildered by foreign criticism of the United States originating in countries which have been the beneficiaries of American aid. The United States does not, of course, expect to purchase good will, but a kind word, now and then, from foreign friends could help to improve international understanding.

The American taxpayers would like to have tax relief, too. They do not regard with equanimity the spectacle of taxes being reduced in countries that are beneficiaries of American aid while rates in this country are higher than during World War II.

There have been no kind words from London or Paris. In the former capital denunciation of U. S. foreign policy, etc., seems to be growing in intensity. Hardly a word in criticism of Moscow is heard in the British capital these days.

But a kind word came from Dr. Khalifa Shuja-ud-Din, speaker of the Punjab Legislative Assembly, on a visit to Washington. The gift of American wheat last summer, said Dr. Khalifa, helped Pakistan through its food crisis. “Now we can direct our energies toward the future,” he said.

That is the ultimate object of all American aid—to enable the free countries to face the future with resolute confidence. In their ability to take care of themselves—not in the perpetuity of American aid—that is.

Research In Wheat

In addition to an intensive study of foreign markets for wheat, approximately 800,000,000 bushels of which will be stored in the United States by next July, that cereal is being put under the microscope by scientists with the aim of discovering non-food uses.

At a conference of the National Association of Wheat Growers in Peoria, Ill., where there is a laboratory just beginning to function, much was said about the possibilities of new channels being opened by wheat research. Dr. Betty Sullivan of Minneapolis said “the most important advance of all will come from discoveries of pure science where the researcher is concerned only with finding what may appear to be remote facts or laws that can govern some phase of biological or other phenomena.”

Dr. Sullivan added that there is an amazing lack of knowledge of the structure of the wheat kernel. Virtually nothing is known about gluten, the constituent which makes wheat unique, she said.

In war times gluten was used in the manufacture of alcohol. In this manner it might become the basis of a wide range of industrial products. High price of wheat seems to rule it out for industrial purposes at the moment.

When American production outstrips demand, scientific research frequently takes over. Many a problem has been solved in that manner. Will wheat consumption horizons be expanded vastly in the near future in some such way?

Meaningful Words

While the honors accorded them came when both were prisoners of the Communists, William Oatis and Frank Noel received them in person at a meeting in New York. Both had spent long, dreary months in Communist bondage, to emerge, through the strange workings of fate, with their integrity unsullied and devotion to their profession a matter of pride to the newspaper world. Both had received flattering offers to turn their talents to the purposes of communism.

Both were on assignments for the Associated Press, Oatis in the cold war of Europe, Noel in the hot war of Korea. Noel lived for months on carrot juice and rice mush, often in solitary confinement. Oatis languished in a dark dungeon, enduring every known trick and devilry on the part of the Communists in an attempt to make him betray his country. Now free men, they join the list of national heroes, honored and respected.

This would seem to be little reward for what they endured, looking at it from a purely physical standpoint. But no man can attain higher honor than to gain the love and respect of a great nation, which Oatis and Noel served in time of stress, “for courage, integrity and enterprise above and beyond the call of duty.” Those are meaningful words, seldom spoken in behalf of any man.

Overweight Must Be Motivated

The obese have special reason to be grateful to the discoverers of penicillin and the other antibiotics. Before the advent of these remedies, pneumonia and other respiratory diseases took a high toll among the overweight. Although the wonder drugs have added years to the life expectancy of the corpulent, however, they still do not have the same longevity as those of normal weight. Insurance statisticians have just completed a new study that bears this out. The overweight are highly susceptible to degenerative diseases of the heart, arteries, and kidneys, which accounts for their excess mortality. The hazard also is greater when the stout develop gallstones, appendicitis, or cirrhosis of the liver.

The new study also revealed that when the portly person reduces his life expectancy is increased but not to the same extent as it would have if he had never been pudgy. In addition, statistics show that women tolerate obesity better than men do and in addition live a little longer (as do women of normal weight) but not as long as their trimmer sisters.

What motivates the obese to overeat? If we knew the answer we might be able to solve the problem. Do they overeat because food is a source of pleasure or a substitute for an unsatisfied craving? In one instance the individual cannot resist temptation; in the other, the cause is psychological. But regardless of the origin, the remedy still lies in avoiding food. The modern physician realizes that finesse is needed as it takes more than a low caloric diet to do the trick. Some need pep talks; others must be shamed or scared into the need for slimming down. It is easier when the man or woman has a reason for wanting to lose weight, more so when another condition co-exists such as diabetes, heart trouble, or arthritis. He cannot be treated successfully so long as excess poundage is carried around. Any reason is better than none, including hubbly’s frequent remarks about Jane’s slender figure.

Those who want to reduce will benefit by keeping a dietary diary. This means jotting down, for a period of 10 days, a record of everything they eat and drink, including the cocktail before dinner and the midnight snack. Once this is completed it is easy to sit down with the physician and review the list of foods to discover the uncovered sources of calories that may be responsible for weight gain. A formal diet may be unnecessary because poundage will be lost by passing up the hidden calories.

You are both in error. So are the women who write and tell us about their prostate gland symptoms, because this structure is found only in men. It is located near the opening of the bladder and has a tendency, after the age of 50 to enlarge and block the flow of urine. We have a leaflet on disorders of the prostate gland, which can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

LIGHT BLOODED
A. A. writes: What is the reason for one person’s blood to be lighter than others? If I happen to cut myself, I notice the blood is real light.

The appearance of blood is deceiving which is why the physician must rely upon chemical tests rather than the older color charts. If your blood has the necessary ingredients, there is no need for concern.

FOOD ALLERGY
L. W. writes: Just lately I cannot eat fruit or jelly without developing horrible swelling of the face. Will I ever be able to eat fruit and jelly again?

Mrs. L. P. writes: My husband used to start snoring immediately on falling to sleep and kept it up all night, every night, regardless of the position he was in. A few weeks ago I developed trouble with a slipped disk and he made a bed board and placed it between the spring and mattress. Since then his snoring has been corrected except when he sleeps on his back. Only one who has had her sleep broken by a person who snores can appreciate how grateful I am to find a solution to the problem, which is why I am passing this story on to you.

REPLY
Congratulations. This is the first cure of snoring I’ve heard of that resulted from treatment of the snorer’s victim.

Running For Congress And Voting For Congressmen Sometimes Neglected Duties;
Congressman Sam McConnell Inspired To Run For Congress While In School

(Editor's Note—Drew Pearson's letters to members of his family have sometimes attracted almost more interest than his biggest news scoops. Today he writes one to his grandson who lives in Los Angeles.

Washington, D. C.
October 5, 1953.

Dear Drew:
It's lonesome at the farm since you went away. Grandpa looks over at your rumbled bed and feels sad in the morning, even though I did scold you when you woke me up so early. Your dump-truck is still under my bed waiting for next summer, and your swimming shorts, with the hole that we always forgot to darn, are still on the line waiting for you to come back and keep me young again.

Blitzen, the cow you named for Santa Claus' reindeer—though she can't move quite that fast—has finally had her calf. She was sorry you couldn't wait to see it. And the pigeons that we tried to scare away on those misty summer mornings are still eating grandpa's alfalfa seedlings. So there will be plenty to do when you come back.

By the time you get this letter your daddy will be so busy that he won't see much of you for a while.

Grandchildren

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Many articles have been written about the continuing rapid increase of U. S. population, which is now over 160,000,000. They all read in a bullish vein and are presented as a cause for great future prosperity. This week, however, I will present another side to this story — namely, what the expected future increase may mean to your children and grandchildren.

Reasons for Expected Increase
The first reason is that there now are more births. The second reason is that there now are fewer deaths proportionately. Deaths among babies are much fewer — while almost everyone is living longer, due to better food, shorter hours, saner habits, and improved medical care. Also the following statistics given me by the editor of MASS TRANSPORTATION are suggestive.

Since 1940, which was only 13 years ago, a new “public” has come into being. Fourteen million old customers have died. More than 17 million marriages have taken place. More than 30 million babies have been born. More than one-third of all present families in the U. S. have been formed. Of the more than 150 million people in the U. S. today, 63 per cent do not remember World War I. Until this year, 32 per cent did not remember a Republican administration in the White House.

Don't Be Fooled by Figures
All the above now results in one baby being born every eight seconds and someone dying every twenty-one seconds. In addition, one immigrant enters the U. S. every two minutes and one emigrant leaves every seventeen minutes. I have no figures on the probable increase in the number of families; but this will be very much less.

These facts would appear to require more schools, more roads, more houses, and even more telephones, automobiles, refrigerators, television sets, etc., etc. I hope this will be true; but not necessarily. Present schoolhouses could take care of the present population by being operated on two shifts. Our roads may now be overbuilt. The number of houses needed depends upon families, not on persons. In the house in which I was born at 58 Middle Street, Gloucester, Mass., one of my ancestors had 21 children.

Higher Taxes Possible
The population increase which comes from living longer presents a problem for our children. When parents or grandparents receive Old-Age Assistance, or pensions, or even Social Security, the money does not come “from the blue sky.” All such benefits must be paid for by the younger people in the form of taxes or a higher price for the goods they are to buy. Taxes should decline somewhat next year, but the decline will not be permanent.

Even the welfare funds which organized labor is now demanding will increase prices unless the workers increase their production accordingly. “Security” must always be paid for by someone. Otherwise, it is like depending upon aspirin to cure a disease. These funds will not remedy the real trouble.

Conservation and Character
To have this large increase in population with a high standard of living, we must conserve our natural resources. This means avoiding waste of everything from oil to trees. Our woodlands and soils must especially be protected—yes, and even the fish of the oceans. It is utterly foolish to talk about “great future prosperity due to increased population” unless we train our children to be less wasteful.

Because he's running for Congress.

I expect you won't realize for some time exactly what that means. But it means he's taking on one of the most thankless but necessary jobs in the country; that he'll be in for all sorts of headaches and heartaches; that he'll be called all sorts of names; that other boys may tease you about him in school and that his political opponents will try to bring me into the campaign and make it appear that I'm the candidate, not your daddy.

Making Enemies

Despite that, I'm proud that he's running for Congress. He'll have to remember, and your mommie will have to remember and you'll have to learn later that anyone who goes in for public service gets an awful lot of names called them and they make a lot of enemies.

But you can't fail because of enemies. And you'll find as you grow older that a man is known just as much by the enemies he makes as by his friends.

Your grandpa has made plenty of enemies; because you can't write the truth as a newspaperman without making them. I've regretted some of the enemies, but I'm not ashamed of them. Some of them, who later went to jail, I've been proud of. Some people I've hated to antagonize because I respected them even when I disagreed with them. But the right kind of people in public office, like Senator Taft, believe in the American right to disagree, and they don't become enemies.

However, I hope that some of the politicians I have tagged in Los Angeles won't take it out on your father, just because of me. And if they reprint the things Westbrook Pegler has said about your grandpa in order to hurt your father, just remember that what isn't true doesn't really hurt anyone. And the truth is bound to come out sooner or later, though sometimes not soon enough in a political campaign.

Young Blood Needed

Anyway, whether he wins or loses, I'm glad he's running for Congress. Because a lot of people today sit back and gripe about their government, yet don't do anything to help their government. A lot of them don't even go out and vote. They complain about Congress and some of the mossbacks in Congress, but they don't run for Congress or do anything about electing young and vigorous congressmen.

One trouble with our country is that during a war everyone pitches in to help his country; then, after a war, everyone sits back and criticizes.

In some ways running for Congress is like fighting a war. Your daddy didn't hang around waiting for an officer's commission in the last war, though his father probably could have got one for him. He went into the Marines as a buck private. And now he's landing on the beachhead of American politics the tough and difficult way, just as his outfit landed at Guam and Iwo Jima.

And if more young veterans ran for Congress in the same way, the country would be a lot better off.

Inspiration For Politics

A man who's already been elected to Congress and who's now being considered for secretary of Labor, Sam McConnell of Pennsylvania, once told me how he happened to run for Congress. He said he was a student in Philadelphia when your great-granddaddy Pearson, who was my father, came to speak at his school. Your great-granddaddy was a professor at Swarthmore College, and Congressman McConnell said he gave such a stirring speech on service to our country that Sam McConnell decided when he grew up to run for Congress.

Congressman McConnell is a banker who could make a lot more money if he weren't in Congress. But he has stayed there, representing the wealthy main line of suburban Philadelphia, but being fair to both labor and business.

Your great-grandfather was a Republican, and out in California Democrats and Republicans are all mixed up. But you will find when you grow up that the political party doesn't make so much difference. The main thing is to work for clean government and for the benefit of all the people, not for single groups.

I suppose it was partly because your great-granddaddy told me the same things he told Congressman McConnell that I got into the kind of newspaper work I'm doing. And though I didn't have the courage your daddy has to run for Congress, I hope I've done a little something to make government cleaner and better.

Anyway, I'm not ashamed of the

Eisenhower's Oracle

WASHINGTON

In the last few months, as has happened periodically since the war, there has been a rising undercurrent of nervousness about the national economic future. It is therefore interesting that our European allies have been officially assured that no really serious economic setback is expected by the Eisenhower administration. The Europeans have also been assured that the administration will take immediate and vigorous measures to deal with the threat of a depression, if such a threat develops.

These assurances were conveyed to the Europeans by Dr. Gabriel Hauge, special economic adviser to President Eisenhower. The President sent Hauge to Europe to represent the United States at a recent meeting of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation. Hauge soon discovered that the Europeans are a good deal more worried about the danger of an American depression than about the danger of Soviet aggression.

This is natural enough. The British remember all too vividly how a rather slight fall-off in the American economy in 1949, which most Americans hardly noticed, came close to bankrupting Britain. The other Europeans are almost equally aware of how disastrous an American depression would be to them. Thus Hauge found himself being treated as a sort of trans-oceanic oracle.

Hauge was endlessly bombarded by three questions, which were repeatedly asked him in one form or another. These questions were:

Is there going to be a depression in the United States?

Is administration economic policy increasing this danger?

Valuable Answers

If a depression threatens, what does the administration propose to do about it?

In view of Hauge's position on the White House staff, what he had to say in answer to these questions should interest Americans at least as much as the Europeans. According to reliable report, Hauge's answers — necessarily somewhat hedged about, as in the case of all economic oracles — may be listed about as follows:

1. At some point before the end of 1954, there is likely to be some sort of “readjustment”—for which read a downward dip in the economy. This may be accompanied by a temporary increase in unemployment—as was the case in 1949—but it should not be serious. Moreover, Hauge told the anxious Europeans, the best guess is that by the end of 1954, the economy will again have reached a new

The Offensive

It is curious that Europeans and Asiatics continue to talk about the change of attitude of the Russians, the new policy of Malenkov, the prospect of a more peaceful solution of the problems arising between the United States and Soviet Russia.

Yesterday's disappointments are readily forgotten in the hopes of tomorrow. Actually nothing has occurred since Stalin's death even to indicate a revolutionary change in the perspective of Soviet Russia in its relationship with other countries. There have been words, but no actions. There has been propaganda, but no implementation.

The Korean truce gives the impression of being a tremendous Russian step toward peace, but the methods employed by the Chinese and Korean Communists, under Russian direction, are the same old game of procrastination, delay and postponement. The Russians know that the United States is obligated to open the political conference by October 28, but Vishinsky continues to try every trick in his bag to confuse the situation, to raise false issues, to arouse the hopes of small nations to play big parts, realizing that the United States cannot and will not agree to any changes in the procedural arrangement already voted in the General Assembly of the United Nations. Everything is done to delay.

The war in Indo-China continues, and the Russians conduct an agitation in France that it is the United States which insists that the war there continue. They are advertising it as an American war against an Asiatic people. Yet, it was the Kremlin that ordered that war against France. One would imagine, from the Russian statements concerning the Indo-Chinese war, that that country had not been a French colonial area since 1862 and continues to be to this day.

The confusions raised by these Russian agitations may be brilliant psychological warfare, but they are enemies I've made in doing so, and I'm sure you won't be ashamed of the enemies your daddy is bound to make. I only hope my enemies won't take it out on him. If they do, remember that this is part of public service and you can't really get hurt if you're working for the good of the country.

It's very lonesome here at the farm. The dogs miss you. Cinder, the cat, misses you. Freddie wants to know when you're coming back to swim with him. And most of all grandpa misses you.

high. In short, the economy will continue to grow, although the over-all rate of growth is likely to be somewhat slower than in recent war-stimulated years.

Hauge qualified this reassuring view by pointing to certain weak spots. The President's adviser was a good deal less worried by the fall in the stock market (which had intensified the anxiety of the Europeans) than by such portents as the slacking off in capital investment and above all the drop in farm income. But, he pointed out, business activity is still at a boom level, and prospective tax cuts will give the consumers more money to spend.

2. On the second point, Hauge assured the Europeans that the Eisenhower administration firmly believes in an expanding economy, and will do everything it can to promote it. Equally, the Eisenhower administration does not believe in taxation by creeping inflation. But the administration has no intention of fighting inflation after inflation is already dead.

Defense In Depth

3. The administration has no intention whatsoever of standing idly by, if the disaster of a depression threatens. This assurance caused a sigh of relief among the Europeans, many of whom had viewed a Republican administration as a reversion to McKinley. If bad trouble does threaten, Hauge explained, the American government has already prepared a sort of defense in depth.

An easier credit policy, centering around reduced interest rates, is the first line of defense. If this is not enough, the administration will fall back on the second line, incentive tax and fiscal policies. The tremendous industrial expansion stimulated by heavy tax write-offs in the defense industries is one of the most striking economic phenomena of the last few years. The same technique, plus other tax incentives, can be used to stimulate capital investment if depression threatens.

Finally, there is an enormous backlog of needed public works, built up over the hot and cold war years, which can be undertaken to underpin a sagging economy. This, of course, is “pump-priming,” with all its New Deal implications. But if there is no other way, the pump will nevertheless be primed.

If Hauge's answers accurately reflect administration policy, in short, the Eisenhower administration simply will not permit the American economy to founder. The White House adviser's answers reassured the anxious Europeans. They should also reassure a good many anxious Americans.

not indicative of any change of Russian policy or tactics since the death of Stalin, or for that matter since the death of Lenin in 1924. The fact is that Soviet Russia is following a continuous permanent policy of world conquest which is essential in the Marxist concept of One World—a world that is nationless, raceless, classless, centering in the Kremlin and governed by a Marxist elite. There can be no question that at long last those in control of the American foreign policy, President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, have grasped the essential nature of the Marxist goal and they understand that a step back, for a moment, even for a good reason, is a rest only to gather strength to make two steps forward, if possible. Lenin made the retreat a tactical method in the strategy of world conquest. It was for this reason that John Foster Dulles abandoned the “Containment Policy” as inadequate and impractical. It is impossible to contain a country determined upon a universal empire, short of war.

Yet, nothing stands still. The abandonment of a policy, long held and implemented, by a series of actions, even involving limited wars, must be replaced by some other policy because the challenge of events requires immediate responses. And such challenges are accelerated by the very existence of the United Nations, which affords member and now even non-member states a forum to state their cases and to attack, if they choose, their opponents and their betters.

The Eisenhower administration is meeting these numerous challenges by taking a position that is more positive, more nationalistic, more coherent in the philosophic sense than this country has witnessed in two decades. This attitude has encountered considerable opposition in Europe, as witness Clement Attlee's anti-American speech in the course of which he tried to convey the impression that the United States was the international trouble-maker.

Yet, actually those nations with whom we have to do business are better off in their relations with the United States because they have a clearer idea of what American purposes and policies are.

The role of Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., in the United Nations is a case in point. He speaks up and although some of his European colleagues have ridiculed him for his lack of diplomacy, actually Lodge has presented his country as tough-minded, conciliatory but not compromising, clear as to intentions but willing to help the cause of peace. He represents a stronger position than his American predecessors in the United Nations.

Buses Requested To Stop Using George St. Depot

A request has been made by the City of Cumberland to bus lines using the George Street terminal facilities that they cease operations in that traffic-congested location on or before December 1.

Police Commissioner John J. Long said yesterday that the congestion occasioned by the use of North George street as a bus terminal must be terminated.

In a letter from City Attorney Thomas B. Finan to the Emory Bus Lines and the Osgood Bus Lines, attention is called to previous requests that a new location for a terminal be opened. It is recalled that the Blue Ridge Bus Co. has offered space at its "off street" terminal "rent free" for a trial period of the facilities there. The City, however, Finan makes clear, is not wanting to compel the other bus lines to use the Blue Ridge terminal, but is insistent that some other place than George Street be established within the next two months.

"I assure you," Finan writes, "that the City is not acting in an arbitrary manner x x x as we have spent almost a year in an effort to work out some agreeable solution."

Yugoslavs Tour Area Orchards

Six visitors from Yugoslavia were in the Cumberland area last week as part of a large group of foreign orchardists and agricultural specialists touring the United States under sponsorship of the Mutual Security Administration. They inspected orchards, packing plants and storage facilities at Romney and Paw Paw. The entire group was entertained at dinner in Lark Inn, Paw Paw, by Henry W. Miller of Consolidated Orchards Wednesday evening. They were luncheon guests at the New Century in Romney.

One of the Yugoslav representatives, Milord Stojkovic, was too ill to join in the Romney and Paw Paw tour. Other countries sending specialists to the U. S. for the current tour of apple and other fruit centers in Oregon, Washington, California, Michigan, West Virginia, Maryland and New York were Austria, Denmark, France, Germany, Portugal, Turkey and Lebanon.

Accompanying the foreign delegation was Leo S. Stanley, of Michigan State, representing the U. S., and four interpreters—Genevieve Laurant, Francis Humann, Georg Gabriel and Helmut Theiss. Longest name of any visitor was Luiz Maria Carraposa Lopez de Fonseca of Portugal.

Prof. Piccard Gets Noisy Welcome

CASTELLAMMARE DI STABIA, Italy, Oct. 2 (AP)—Prof. Auguste Piccard, who plunged to a record of nearly two miles below the sea Wednesday, came back to a noisy welcome in this Naples Bay village tonight.

The slender Swiss scientist and his son Jacques returned aboard the Italian corvette Tenace along with the odd-shaped bathyscaph that rode down 10,339 feet to the bottom of the Mediterranean.

They made the record-breaking descent off the island of Ponza, about 50 miles west of Naples, in the Tyrrhenian sea trough, probably the deepest point in the Mediterranean.

Since the 15th century, forts have been built on the Gold coast of Africa by the Portuguese, Spanish, Dutch, English, Danes and Swedes.

Night Hunters Kill Two Steers At Town Creek

Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke took a "verbal shot" Saturday at spotlight hunters who shot two young Hereford steers in the Town Creek district.

Thomas A. Wilson, owner of the cattle, estimated the loss at more than $300 and said the steers were left lying in a field after being shot. Another farmer living a short distance off U. S. Route 40 reported that night hunters fired at a deer standing within a few yards of his home.

During the past few weeks, Minke stated, spotlight hunters have been active in the eastern section of Allegany County, mostly in the vicinity of Flintstone and Green Ridge. Farmers are the principal complainants.

As a result, game wardens have been compelled to work day and night since there are many daylight violations regarding other species of upland game.

Minke pointed out that wardens have succeeded in nabbing two cars operating with spotlights and high-powered rifles in the possession of hunters. Five drew fines of $100 each within the past two weeks, he said.

Woman's Group Will Sponsor Tour Of U. N.

The International Relations Group of the Woman's Civic Club is sponsoring a tour to the United Nations headquarters in New York which will be open to the public.

Mrs. Lloyd Buchanan, chairman, said the schedule calls for departure at 5:45 a. m. Thursday, October 29, on the B&O's "Columbian." The train, she continued, will arrive in New York at 1:30 p. m. that day. Reservations for the two-night stay in New York are being made with the Victoria Hotel.

The round-trip train travel will be by reserved coach seats. Mrs. Buchanan explained. A Baltimore and Ohio motor coach will conduct the travelers from the Jersey City terminal to the hotel and special bus transfers will be in effect between the hotel and United Nations.

Conducted tours of the United Nations building and activities will highlight the trip. The return to Cumberland will be made Saturday, October 31.

Reservations must be in by October 10, she continued, adding that persons interested should get in touch with her so the proper arrangements can be made. M. W. Grove is handling the railroad transportation arrangements.

About three and one-half pounds of wool are used in a man's suit.

Man's Legs Amputated After RR Mishap

A Baltimore and Ohio Railroad worker, employed less than two weeks as a brakeman, had both his legs amputated as the result of an accident minutes after he reported for work Wednesday night.

The man, identified as Stanley Harman, 40, of LaVale, was starting his second week of employment when he reported for work at the "West Hump" of the railroad at 11 p. m. Wednesday.

Railroad officials said he was riding a detached boxcar, minutes after he reported for work, when the car unexpectedly caught up with a three-car "cut" in front of it and crushed his legs between them. B&O officials said the accident was due in large part to his inexperience.

Harman was taken to Memorial Hospital in an ambulance and his left leg was removed about halfway between the hip and knee that same evening. It was thought the right leg could be saved, but it also had to be removed Friday night in about the same place as the other. Attaches reported him in "good" condition yesterday evening.

A former employee of the Celanese plant, Harman has resided here 13 or 14 years. He was forced to seek other employment when the Dye House of the Celanese plant closed down recently, and for a while was employed by the Chrysler Corporation in Cleveland.

He returned here the latter part of August and his B&O employment was the first he had obtained.

His wife is the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Carwell of Hendricks, W. Va. They have a seven-year-old daughter, Joan.

Industrial Arts Teachers Offered Course At Hancock

Industrial arts teachers in the Allegany County public school system may be able to take some courses offered by the College of Special and Continuing Studies at the University of Maryland.

J. D. Lonnholm, supervisor of vocational, industrial and adult education, has written to the teachers to see which, if any such courses interest them. If sufficient interest is found here and in other Western Maryland counties the classes may be offered on Saturday mornings at Hancock High School.

Something New In Korea

Something unprecedented in the history of warfare—or, more accurately, that aspect of warfare having to do with the exchange of prisoners—is under way in Korea. The exchange of prisoners who were willing to be repatriated is complete, except for those still unaccounted for by the Communists. Now the period for “explanations” to prisoners who have refused to return home is under way.

Never before have prisoners of war been so much as asked whether they wanted to be repatriated. It has always been assumed that they would want to return to their own countries. The assumption was natural and warranted, except in very special circumstances. But the Korean War was not like the wars that justified this assumption—because the Communists forced men to fight against their will and against their convictions.

These men, whether they surrendered or deserted to UN forces, did not want to go back and the U. S. high command would not agree to coercion. So the armistice provided that both sides could try to persuade men who once wore their uniforms to come home again.

The explanation process promises to be a difficult one at best. It could be dangerous if the thousands of prisoners turned over to the Korean Repatriation Commission by the UN should get out of hand. It is easy to believe that Indian military authorities, whose troops police the operation, are nervous. Many of the prisoners are resentful men, and India is not regarded as anti-Communist.

The letter put in the hands of the prisoners by the commission showed a pro-Communist slant. The attitude it reflected was the opposite of neutral. The anti-Red prisoners had a right to be incensed.

Nevertheless, the explanation period has been agreed to and is now under way. Every American hopes that the 23 Americans, the sole Briton and the 335 South Koreans who have refused repatriation will be persuaded to change their minds, and that the 23,000 Chinese and North Koreans entrusted to the commission will not.

Card Of Thanks

It is natural that Americans should sometimes be irritated and bewildered by foreign criticism of the United States originating in countries which have been the beneficiaries of American aid. The United States does not, of course, expect to purchase good will, but a kind word, now and then, from foreign friends could help to improve international understanding.

The American taxpayers would like to have tax relief, too. They do not regard with equanimity the spectacle of taxes being reduced in countries that are beneficiaries of American aid while rates in this country are higher than during World War II.

There have been no kind words from London or Paris. In the former capital denunciation of U. S. foreign policy, etc., seems to be growing in intensity. Hardly a word in criticism of Moscow is heard in the British capital these days.

But a kind word came from Dr. Khalifa Shuja-ud-Din, speaker of the Punjab Legislative Assembly, on a visit to Washington. The gift of American wheat last summer, said Dr. Khalifa, helped Pakistan through its food crisis. “Now we can direct our energies toward the future,” he said.

That is the ultimate object of all American aid—to enable the free countries to face the future with resolute confidence. In their ability to take care of themselves—not in the perpetuity of American aid—that is.

Research In Wheat

In addition to an intensive study of foreign markets for wheat, approximately 800,000,000 bushels of which will be stored in the United States by next July, that cereal is being put under the microscope by scientists with the aim of discovering non-food uses.

At a conference of the National Association of Wheat Growers in Peoria, Ill., where there is a laboratory just beginning to function, much was said about the possibilities of new channels being opened by wheat research. Dr. Betty Sullivan of Minneapolis said “the most important advance of all will come from discoveries of pure science where the researcher is concerned only with finding what may appear to be remote facts or laws that can govern some phase of biological or other phenomena.”

Dr. Sullivan added that there is an amazing lack of knowledge of the structure of the wheat kernel. Virtually nothing is known about gluten, the constituent which makes wheat unique, she said.

In war times gluten was used in the manufacture of alcohol. In this manner it might become the basis of a wide range of industrial products. High price of wheat seems to rule it out for industrial purposes at the moment.

When American production outstrips demand, scientific research frequently takes over. Many a problem has been solved in that manner. Will wheat consumption horizons be expanded vastly in the near future in some such way?

Meaningful Words

While the honors accorded them came when both were prisoners of the Communists, William Oatis and Frank Noel received them in person at a meeting in New York. Both had spent long, dreary months in Communist bondage, to emerge, through the strange workings of fate, with their integrity unsullied and devotion to their profession a matter of pride to the newspaper world. Both had received flattering offers to turn their talents to the purposes of communism.

Both were on assignments for the Associated Press, Oatis in the cold war of Europe, Noel in the hot war of Korea. Noel lived for months on carrot juice and rice mush, often in solitary confinement. Oatis languished in a dark dungeon, enduring every known trick and devilry on the part of the Communists in an attempt to make him betray his country. Now free men, they join the list of national heroes, honored and respected.

This would seem to be little reward for what they endured, looking at it from a purely physical standpoint. But no man can attain higher honor than to gain the love and respect of a great nation, which Oatis and Noel served in time of stress, “for courage, integrity and enterprise above and beyond the call of duty.” Those are meaningful words, seldom spoken in behalf of any man.

Overweight Must Be Motivated

The obese have special reason to be grateful to the discoverers of penicillin and the other antibiotics. Before the advent of these remedies, pneumonia and other respiratory diseases took a high toll among the overweight. Although the wonder drugs have added years to the life expectancy of the corpulent, however, they still do not have the same longevity as those of normal weight. Insurance statisticians have just completed a new study that bears this out. The overweight are highly susceptible to degenerative diseases of the heart, arteries, and kidneys, which accounts for their excess mortality. The hazard also is greater when the stout develop gallstones, appendicitis, or cirrhosis of the liver.

The new study also revealed that when the portly person reduces his life expectancy is increased but not to the same extent as it would have if he had never been pudgy. In addition, statistics show that women tolerate obesity better than men do and in addition live a little longer (as do women of normal weight) but not as long as their trimmer sisters.

What motivates the obese to overeat? If we knew the answer we might be able to solve the problem. Do they overeat because food is a source of pleasure or a substitute for an unsatisfied craving? In one instance the individual cannot resist temptation; in the other, the cause is psychological. But regardless of the origin, the remedy still lies in avoiding food. The modern physician realizes that fineness is needed as it takes more than a low caloric diet to do the trick. Some need pep talks; others must be shamed or scared into the need for slimming down. It is easier when the man or woman has a reason for wanting to lose weight, more so when another condition co-exists such as diabetes, heart trouble, or arthritis. He cannot be treated successfully so long as excess poundage is carried around. Any reason is better than none, including hubbly's frequent remarks about Jane's slender figure.

Those who want to reduce will benefit by keeping a dietary diary. This means jotting down, for a period of 10 days, a record of everything they eat and drink, including the cocktail before dinner and the midnight snack. Once this is completed it is easy to sit down with the physician and review the list of foods to discover the uncovered sources of calories that may be responsible for weight gain. A formal diet may be unnecessary because poundage will be lost by passing up the hidden calories.

A. A. writes: What is the reason for one person's blood to be lighter than others? If I happen to cut myself, I notice the blood is real light.

A few weeks ago I developed trouble with a slipped disk and he made a bed board and placed it between the spring and mattress. Since then his snoring has been corrected except when he sleeps on his back. Only one who has had sleep broken by a person who snores can appreciate how grateful I am to find a solution to the problem, which is why I am passing this story on to you.

REPLY
Congratulations. This is the first cure of snoring I've heard of that resulted from treatment of the snorer's victim.

DREW PEARSON on

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Running For Congress And Voting For Congressmen Sometimes Neglected Duties; Congressman Sam McConnell Inspired To Run For Congress While In School

(Editor's Note—Drew Pearson's letters to members of his family have sometimes attracted almost more interest than his biggest news scoops. Today he writes one to his grandson who lives in Los Angeles.

Washington, D. C.
October 5, 1953.

Dear Drew:

It's lonesome at the farm since you went away. Grandpa looks over at your rumpled bed and feels sad in the morning, even though I did sleep when you woke me up so early. Your dump-truck is still under my bed waiting for next summer, and your swimming shorts, with the hole that we always forgot to darn, are still on the line waiting for you to come back and keep me young again.

Blitzen, the cow you named for Santa Claus' reindeer—though she can't move quite that fast—has finally had her calf. She was sorry you couldn't wait to see it. And the pigeons that we tried to scare away on those misty summer mornings are still eating grandpa's alfalfa seedlings. So there will be plenty to do when you come back.

By the time you get this letter your daddy will be so busy that he won't see much of you for a while.

Because he's running for Congress. I expect you won't realize for some time exactly what that means. But it means he's taking on one of the most thankless but necessary jobs in the country; that he'll be in for all sorts of headaches and heartaches; that he'll be called all sorts of names; that other boys may tease you about him in school and that his political opponents will try to bring me into the campaign and make it appear that I'm the candidate, not your daddy.

Making Enemies
Despite that, I'm proud that he's running for Congress. He'll have to remember, and your mommie will have to remember and you'll have to learn later that anyone who goes in for public service gets an awful lot of names called them and they make a lot of enemies.

But you can't falter because of enemies. And you'll find as you grow older that a man is known just as much by the enemies he makes as by his friends.

Your grandpa has made plenty of enemies; because you can't write the truth as a newspaperman without making them. I've regretted some of the enemies, but I'm not ashamed of them. Some of them, who later went to jail, I've been proud of. Some people I've hated to antagonize because I respected them even when I disagreed with them. But the right kind of people in public office, like Senator Taft, believe in the American right to disagree, and they don't become enemies.

However, I hope that some of the politicians I have tagged in Los Angeles won't take it out on your father, just because of me. And if they reprint the things Westbrook Pegler has said about your grandpa in order to hurt your father, just remember that what isn't true doesn't really hurt anyone. And the truth is bound to come out sooner or later, though sometimes not soon enough in a political campaign.

Young Blood Needed
Anyway, whether he wins or loses, I'm glad he's running for Congress. Because a lot of people today sit back and gripe about their government, yet don't do anything to help their government. A lot of them don't even go out and vote. They complain about Congress and some of the mossbacks in Congress, but they don't run for Congress or do anything about electing young and vigorous congressmen.

One trouble with our country is that during a war everyone pitches in to help his country; then, after a war, everyone sits back and criticizes.

In some ways running for Congress is like fighting a war. Your daddy didn't fight around waiting for an officer's commission in the last war, though his father probably could have got one for him. He went into the Marines as a buck private. And now he's landing on the beachhead of American politics the tough and difficult way, just as his outfit landed at Guam and Iwo Jima.

And if more young veterans ran for Congress in the same way, the country would be a lot better off.

Inspiration For Politics
A man who's already been elected to Congress and who's now being considered for secretary of Labor, Sam McConnell of Pennsylvania, once told me how he happened to run for Congress. He said he was a student in Philadelphia when your great-granddaddy Pearson, who was my father, came to speak at his school. Your great-granddaddy was a professor at Swarthmore College, and Congressman McConnell said he gave such a stirring speech on service to our country that Sam McConnell decided when he grew up to run for Congress.

Congressman McConnell is a banker who could make a lot more money if he weren't in Congress. But he has stayed there, representing the wealthy main line of suburban Philadelphia, but being fair to both labor and business.

Your great-grandfather was a Republican, and out in California Democrats and Republicans are all mixed up. But you will find when you grow up that the political party doesn't make so much difference. The main thing is to work for clean government and for the benefit of all the people, not for single groups.

I suppose it was partly because your great-granddaddy told me the same things he told Congressman McConnell that I got into the kind of newspaper work I'm doing. And though I didn't have the courage your daddy has to run for Congress, I hope I've done a little something to make government cleaner and better.

Anyway, I'm not ashamed of the

Eisenhower's Oracle

WASHINGTON

In the last few months, as has happened periodically since the war, there has been a rising undercurrent of nervousness about the national economic future. It is therefore interesting that our European allies have been seriously assured that no really serious economic setback is expected by the Eisenhower administration. The Europeans have also been assured that the administration will take immediate and vigorous measures to deal with the threat of a depression, if such a threat develops.

These assurances were conveyed to the Europeans by Dr. Gabriel Hauge, special economic adviser to President Eisenhower. The President sent Hauge to Europe to represent the United States at a recent meeting of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation. Hauge soon discovered that the Europeans are a good deal more worried about the danger of an American depression than about the danger of Soviet aggression.

This is natural enough. The British remember all too vividly how a rather slight fall-off in the American economy in 1949, which most Americans hardly noticed, came close to bankrupting Britain. The other Europeans are almost equally aware of how disastrous an American depression would be to them. Thus Hauge found himself being treated as a sort of trans-oceanic oracle.

Hauge was endlessly bombarded by three questions, which were repeatedly asked him in one form or another. These questions were:

Is there going to be a depression in the United States?
Is administration economic policy increasing this danger?

Valuable Answers
If a depression threatens, what does the administration propose to do about it?

In view of Hauge's position on the White House staff, what he had to say in answer to these questions should interest Americans at least as much as the Europeans. According to reliable report, Hauge's answers—necessarily somewhat hedged about, as in the case of all economic oracles—may be listed about as follows:

1. At some point before the end of 1954, there is likely to be some sort of “readjustment”—for which read a downward dip in the economy. This may be accompanied by a temporary increase in unemployment—as was the case in 1949—but it should not be serious. Moreover, Hauge told the anxious Europeans, the best guess is that by the end of 1954, the economy will again have reached a new high. In short, the economy will continue to grow, although the over-all rate of growth is likely to be somewhat slower than in recent war-stimulated years.

Hauge qualified this reassuring view by pointing to certain weak spots. The President's adviser was a good deal less worried by the fall in the stock market (which had intensified the anxiety of the Europeans) than by such portents as the slackening off in capital investment and above all the drop in farm income. But, he pointed out, business activity is still at a boom level, and prospective tax cuts will give the consumers more money to spend.

2. On the second point, Hauge assured the Europeans that the Eisenhower administration firmly believes in an expanding economy, and will do everything it can to promote it. Equally, the Eisenhower administration does not believe in taxation by creeping inflation. But the administration has no intention of fighting inflation after inflation is already dead.

Defense In Depth
3. The administration has no intention whatsoever of standing idly by, if the disaster of a depression threatens. This assurance caused a sigh of relief among the Europeans, many of whom had viewed a Republican administration as a reversion to McKinley. If bad trouble does threaten, Hauge explained, the American government has already prepared a sort of defense in depth.

An easier credit policy, centering around reduced interest rates, is the first line of defense. If this is not enough, the administration will fall back on the second line, incentive tax and fiscal policies. The tremendous industrial expansion stimulated by heavy tax write-offs in the defense industries is one of the most striking economic phenomena of the last few years. The same technique, plus other tax incentives, can be used to stimulate capital investment if depression threatens.

Finally, there is an enormous backlog of needed public works, built up over the hot and cold war years, which can be undertaken to underpin a sagging economy. This, of course, is “pump-priming,” with all its New Deal implications. But if there is no other way, the pump will nevertheless be primed.

If Hauge's answers accurately reflect administration policy, in short, the Eisenhower administration simply will not permit the American economy to founder. The White House adviser's answers reassured the anxious Europeans. They should also reassure a good many anxious Americans.

The Offensive

It is curious that Europeans and Asiatics continue to talk about the change of attitude of the Russians, the new policy of Malenkov, the prospect of a more peaceful solution of the problems arising between the United States and Soviet Russia.

Yesterday's disappointments are readily forgotten in the hopes of tomorrow. Actually nothing has occurred since Stalin's death even to indicate a revolutionary change in the perspective of Soviet Russia in its relationship with other countries. There have been words, but no actions. There has been propaganda, but no implementation.

The Korean truce gives the impression of being a tremendous Russian step toward peace, but the methods employed by the Chinese and Korean Communists, under Russian direction, are the same old game of procrastination, delay and postponement. The Russians know that the United States is obligated to open the political conference by October 28, but Vishinsky continues to try every trick in his bag to confuse the situation, to raise false issues, to arouse the hopes of small nations to play big parts, realizing that the United States cannot and will not agree to any changes in the procedural arrangement already voted in the General Assembly of the United Nations. Everything is done to delay.

The war in Indo-China continues, and the Russians conduct an agitation in France that it is the United States which insists that the war there continue. They are advertising it as an American war against an Asiatic people. Yet, it was the Kremlin that ordered that war against France. One would imagine, from the Russian statements concerning the Indo-Chinese war, that that country had not been a French colonial area since 1862 and continues to be to this day.

The confusions raised by these Russian agitations may be brilliant psychological warfare, but they are enemies I've made in doing so, and I'm sure you won't be ashamed of the enemies your daddy is bound to make. I only hope my enemies won't take it out on him. If they do, remember that this is part of public service and you can't really get hurt if you're working for the good of the country.

It's very lonesome here at the farm. The dogs miss you. Cinder, the cat, misses you. Freddie wants to know when you're coming back to swim with him. And most of all grandpa misses you.

Love, GRANDFATHER

not indicative of any change of Russian policy or tactics since the death of Stalin, or for that matter since the death of Lenin in 1924.

The fact is that Soviet Russia is following a continuous permanent policy of world conquest which is essential in the Marxist concept of One World—a world that is nationless, raceless, classless, centering in the Kremlin and governed by a Marxist elite. There can be no question that at long last those in control of the American foreign policy, President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, have grasped the essential nature of the Marxist goal and they understand that a step back, for a moment, even for a good reason, is a rest only to gather strength to make two steps forward, if possible. Lenin made the retreat a tactical method in the strategy of world conquest. It was for this reason that John Foster Dulles abandoned the “Containment Policy” as inadequate and impractical. It is impossible to contain a country determined upon a universal empire, short of war.

Yet, nothing stands still. The abandonment of a policy, long held and implemented, by a series of actions, even involving limited wars, must be replaced by some other policy because the challenge of events requires immediate responses. And such challenges are accelerated by the very existence of the United Nations, which affords member and now even non-member states a forum to state their cases and to attack, if they choose, their opponents and their betters.

The Eisenhower administration is meeting these numerous challenges by taking a position that is more positive, more nationalistic, more coherent in the philosophic sense than this country has witnessed in two decades. This attitude has encountered considerable opposition in Europe, as witness Clement Attlee's anti-American speech in the course of which he tried to convey the impression that the United States was the international trouble-maker.

Yet, actually those nations with whom we have to do business are better off in their relations with the United States because they have a clearer idea of what American purposes and policies are.

The role of Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., in the United Nations is a case in point. He speaks up and although some of his European colleagues have ridiculed him for his lack of diplomacy, actually Lodge has presented his country as tough-minded, conciliatory but not compromising, clear as to intentions but willing to help the cause of peace. He represents a stronger position than his American predecessors in the United Nations.

Forest Fire Patrol On Lookout For Mineral County Blazes

KEYSER—This is the time known as fire season in the hills and mountains of West Virginia, a time that causes worry to many rural inhabitants as well as conservationists and game wardens.

The season carries through from October 1 to December 31. The Forest Fire Patrol is especially active at this time. It is a part of the Division of Forestry of the Conservation Commission and recently alerted the Mineral County conservationists to the danger that is imminent, due to the extreme dryness of the past many weeks. The patrolman in Mineral County, is Arlie E. Cosner and he has been active in arousing citizens of the county to the dangers at this time.

Although warnings of caution have been used to alert the communities, special emphasis has been placed on the use of every precaution and safety device known to prevent fires in grass and forests. All persons are advised to notify local forest protectors or the Pinnacle Fire Tower at once.

The observer at the tower is Edward W. Shoemaker, and when a fire is discovered, he or she is asked to call Shoemaker at once, telephone number 14F1, Keyser. This call, if made immediately, may prevent a serious fire and may result in saving lives or serious injury to persons at the scene of the fire.

PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

Be sure your match is out

The danger is always there, the fire watchers say, every fall period, but this fall, the worst that has been experienced here in a number of years, because there has not been enough rain to dampen the ground and the grass, trees and other vegetation. A small spark might cause a huge conflagration within minutes because of the tinder quality of the brush, grass and other vegetation. The carelessness of one person in the woods might cause terrible loss and suffering, say local men in Keyser who know the general situation in the outlying areas of the county.

Farmer's Tax Bill Rises 89 Per Cent In 12 Years

Farm property, highway-use and sales tax paid by Maryland farmers have increased 89 per cent in the last 12 years, a University of Maryland study reports. A new Agricultural Experiment Station publication describes trends in Maryland farm tax liabilities from 1940 to 1953.

W. P. Walker, F. E. Hulse and P. E. Nystrom, the Agricultural economists who wrote the report, say higher farm taxes were inevitable, in view of greater emphasis on improved roads and better schools, the two most important state and local government functions serving farmers.

On the whole, they say, the state and county tax system has an equal impact on farm and non-farm groups.

Total farm property taxes were $3,744,105 in 1940-41 as compared with $5,145,678 in 1951-52, or an increase of 36 per cent. Farm real estate taxes per acre increased from 73 cents in 1940-41 to $1.02 in 1952-53.

In 1940-41 farm property assessments totaled $250,910,710, or $1.156 per capita of farm population. The non-farm taxable basis was $1,901,392,290 or $1.185 per capita.

By 1950-51 the total assessed valuation against farm property increased to $1,506 per capita of farm population, in contrast to $1,463 per capita full rate taxable basis for the non-farm population.

Highway-user tax liabilities of Maryland farmers in 1951-52 were nearly twice what they were in 1940-41, the totals being $2,837,000 in 1951-52 as compared with $1,488,000 in the earlier year.

Since food production on farms is the principal source of non-cash income of farm families, the complete exemption of food from the Maryland sales tax makes that tax apply more uniformly between farm and non-farm families than do sales taxes in most other states.

The three most important farmers' taxes in Maryland amounted to a liability of about $9,863,000 in 1951-52, as compared with $5,232,000 in 1940-41, or an increase of nearly 89 per cent during the 12-year period.

Farmers' property taxes, on a per capita basis, were about the same as the per capita property tax of the non-farm groups in 1951-52. Per capita highway-user taxes for farmers were $19.76 as compared with $19.41 for the non-farmers. Sales taxes equaled $13.10 per capita for the farmers and $11.98 for the non-farmers.

Keyser Reports Much Building

KEYSER—The past spring and summer has been marked by increased building and remodeling in Keyser.

With the fall season beginning, another improvement is being made on North Davis Street, where the First Methodist Church has begun clearing ground and doing excavation work preparatory to building an addition to the church. Work started last week and will be rushed before bad weather interferes.

The addition will become a part of the present building. It will be an ell-shaped educational building, two stories high with a basement, extending to the alley line. The church officers have plans and specifications for a complete remodeling of the structure, but due to insufficient funds, it was decided to spread the work over a long term period. An estimate of the cost for the complete building work is $120,000.

On North Davis Street, work is nearing completion on the brick recreation building being erected by the congregation of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church. This work has been underway for the past couple of months and has reached the point where it will be finished within the near future. The interior work will be continued during the winter months.

with His Son, Christ. Therefore, the question we must all ask ourselves is, "How do we compare with Christ?" Since we fall short, we must ask God's forgiveness and help to make us what we ought to be.

Christ was perfect in every way. He was perfect in His willingness to do God's will and in obedience to His commands. We need to do the same thing. Then we'll never fear being accused of self-righteousness nor of being stiff-necked. We'll need not fear being carried away for our sins as was Israel.

Clutch Yankee Homers Sink Dodgers In Fifth Game, 11-7

Mantle Belts Grand Slam Blow In Third

Meyer Is Victim; McDonald, Podres Kayoed; 36,775 Watch

BROOKLYN, Oct. 4 (AP)—Mickey Mantle switching madly from hero to goat and back again, hit a crushing grand slam home run off reliever Russ Meyer's first pitch today as the New York Yankees bombed Brooklyn, 11-7, in a wild slugfest to regain the World Series lead, three games to two.

Needing only one more victory to clinch an unprecedented fifth straight championship, the Yanks go home to Yankee Stadium for tomorrow's sixth game and seventh, if necessary.

McDonald Knocked Out
Jim McDonald, Manager Casey Stengel's desperation starter, yielded 11 Dodger singles before Billy Cox's three-run homer in the eighth knocked him out. Lefty Bob Kuzava and finally Allie Reynolds, with his aching back, were needed to make sure the Dodgers were dead for the day.

Six home runs sailed through the sunny air to tie a series record set by the Yankees and Chicago Cubs, Oct. 1, 1932. The Yanks' total of four was only one short of their own mark, hung up by the 1928 "Murderers' Row" against St. Louis.

The blow Mantle hit off Meyer, who had just replaced 21-year-old Johnny Podres, stunned the big Sunday crowd of 36,775, exactly the same number that set a new series record yesterday. The Dodgers never were able to recover their balance although they thrashed around violently in the eighth and ninth.

Mantle's homer topped a cluster of five unearned runs in the third, an inning that let the air out of Dodger hopes for a clean sweep in their friendly ball park.

A vital error by Gil Hodges on Joe Collins' smash off first base put the Yankees in position for their big third inning. The error let Phil Rizzuto score from second and put the rookie Podres in a tough hole.

Bauer Is Hit
The kid southpaw hit Hank Bauer on the right wrist and walked Yogi Berra on a 3-1 pitch to fill the bases. Manager Chuck Dressen decided to call Meyer, the hot tempered ex-Phil who had been warming up since the start of the game.

Russ strode in to face Mantle, four times a strikeout victim of Carl Erskine in Friday's game. Mantle, batting lefty, rode the first pitch high into the upper stands in left about 390 feet away.

Gene Woodling slammed Podres' fourth pitch into the center field seats, a 395 foot poke, leading off for the Yanks. It was the first time a series player had opened up with a homer since Detroit's Davey Jones in 1909.

Brooklyn had McDonald on the ropes in the second when he was lucky to escape with only one run on singles by Roy Campanella and Gil Hodges and a wild throw by Phil Rizzuto on Carl Furillo's double play ball.

Hodges Is Doubled
The Dodgers had men on first and third with nobody out and a run in when Woodling took Billy Cox's fly ball and doubled Hodges at the plate with a beautiful no-bounce throw to Berra.

Mantle's homer in the five-run third gave the Yanks a 6-1 cushion that looked mighty soft to McDonald, the fellow Yankee tried to trade away last winter.

Billy Martin, the series' leading batter with 10 hits, only two short of the record, blasted a Meyer pitch into the handy left field stands following Berra's single in the seventh, widening the gap to 8-2. Rizzuto's single and McDonald's double that took a bad hop past Jackie Robinson ran it to 9-2 later in the same inning.

McDonald finally got the business in the eighth after so many close escapes. Singles by Robinson, Campanella and Furillo produced one run and brought up Cox whose three-run homer closed the gap to 10-6.

Loch Lynn Takes Mountain Title

Terra Alta Loses 9-8 To Bob Glaze

TERRA ALTA, W. Va., Oct. 4 (AP)—Loch Lynn, second half winners of the Mountain Top Baseball League, made it two straight to sweep the best-of-three playoff series with first half champs, Terra Alta, here today. The score was 9 to 8.

Loch Lynn scored the winning tally in the ninth when Teener Stewart doubled and came home on winning pitcher Bob Glaze's one-base knock.

In addition to batting home the deciding tally Glaze, the league's best hurler during the regular season with an 11-4 mark, struck out four and went the distance to register his second straight playoff triumph. Glaze bested Bob Fraley of Terra Alta, his hurling opponent today, in the playoff opener last week, 3-0.

Vinich hit a double and home-run and K. Bolvard also had a circuit cut to pace Terra Alta's losing cause at the plate. James, Kelly and Stewart each had a double and a home run for Loch Lynn. The score:

Snead Played Ryder Series With Bad Hand

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., disclosed tonight he played through the Ryder Cup match with a broken bone in his left hand.

"The hand tried quite a bit towards the end of the match. But I'm not offering that as any sort of an excuse," Snead told newsmen at London Airport before flying to Paris with his Ryder Cup teammates.

Snead lost his singles match yesterday to Britain's Harry Weetman when he blew a 5-up lead and lost 1-0. However, the U. S. team went on to squeeze out a 6½ to 5½ point victory over the Britons.

Browns Win, 27-7

CHICAGO, Oct. 4 (INS)—The Cleveland Browns scored in all but the third quarter today to trim the Chicago Cardinals, 27 to 7, in a professional football game at Comiskey Park.

Lou (The Toe) Groza, Browns tackle, missed a point after touchdown in the second period—the first miss of his eight-year pro career. Groza had kicked 109 points without a miss until Volney Peters of the Cards charged in to block today's attempt.

Quarterback Otto Graham's passes and effective running by fullback Harry Jagade spearheaded the Browns' attack.

State May Lose All Minor Loop Affiliations

Hagerstown On Rocks By Attendance Drop

By HARRY WARNER, Jr.
Hagerstown Herald Staff Writer
HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 4 (AP)—Maryland, which sparked the gleam for many of baseball's greatest stars, may not have a minor league club next year, for the first time in more than a half-century.

Minor league baseball in Maryland, which boomed for a brief time after World War Two, dropped to two clubs this past summer, the Baltimore Orioles and Hagerstown Braves.

Baltimore lost its minor league rating by the simple process of getting a major league franchise. Hagerstown is threatened with the loss of its Piedmont League franchise because Owner Eugene Roney is dissatisfied with attendance.

As recently as five years ago, minor league baseball had six Maryland franchises—Baltimore, Hagerstown and four Eastern Shore League cities, Salisbury, Easton, Cambridge and Federalburg. They attracted some 375,000 fans.

But the Eastern Shore League broke up, knocking out baseball in all of its cities except Salisbury, which found a new home in the Inter-State League. The Inter-State League failed to operate in 1953.

Hagerstown fans are attempting to keep their franchise. Roney at various times has been reported willing to stay in Hagerstown, if he gets a sufficiently large advance sale over the winter, or willing to sell the franchise if Hagerstown interests will meet his price. But the situation is complicated by the fact that the Milwaukee Braves have suddenly ended the working agreement with Roney which had produced two pennant winners and a second place club in the past three years.

Sporadic efforts to put other Maryland cities like Cumberland and Frederick into minor league baseball haven't succeeded up to now. In some cases, television and closeness to major league cities are the stumbling block, while other cities lack facilities for night baseball.

Increased costs of operating minor league teams are also blamed by veteran Maryland baseball men for the present situation. The Hagerstown club, for instance, drew some 57,000 fans this year, but lost money. Back in the days when Marylanders like Lefty Grove, Babe Ruth, and Jimmy Foxx were playing on sandlots, there was a rule of thumb that calculated a successful season as occurring when a team's draw equaled the city's population.

Bobcat Booters Defeat Alumni

FROSTBURG, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Frostburg State Bobcats scored their first soccer victory yesterday by defeating an Alumni team here, 3-0.

Keyser Ridge Wins Series

Tops Wellersburg In Finals, 5 To 3

MT. SAVAGE, Oct. 4 (AP)—A three-run outburst in the seventh inning enabled Keyser Ridge's pennant winners to top Wellersburg in the finals of their three-game playoff series for the Pen Mar League title. The score was 5-3 in the contest played on a neutral field here.

The two teams divided the first two games with Keyser Ridge coping the first, 14-7, and Wellersburg evening the series with a 5-1 victory last week.

Danny Cullen, although needing help from George Richards and Bob Keister in the eighth, was the winning hurler.

The winning rally was highlighted by a two-run homer by Ossie Nelson. Tom Dunn collected a triple and single and Jack Brode three singles to pace the Keyser Ridge attack.

Cullen left the scene when Kennell and Charley O'Baker hit successive singles in the eighth for Wellersburg. After Richards fanned both Duckworth and Shaffer, Don Hansel hit a pinch single and when Keister fumbled the ball in right two runs scored. When two more Wellersburg batters reached base, Keister came in to fan Bridges to retire the side.

O'Baker had a triple besides his single and Kennell and Chuck Eirich each had two bingles for Wellersburg. The score:

KEYSER RIDGE ... 110 000 300-5
WELLERSBURG ... 000 010 020-3

Cullen, Richards (8), R. Keister (8) and Conners, Felker, Duckworth (7) and Kennell.

The idea of the now popular "ten cent store" originated in Watertown, N. Y.

Forest Fire Patrol On Lookout For Mineral County Blazes

KEYSER—This is the time known as fire season in the hills and mountains of West Virginia, a time that causes worry to many rural inhabitants as well as conservationists and game wardens.

The season carries through from October 1 to December 31. The Forest Fire Patrol is especially active at this time. It is a part of the Division of Forestry of the Conservation Commission and recently alerted the Mineral County conservationists to the danger that is imminent, due to the extreme dryness of the past many weeks.

The patrolman in Mineral County, is Arlie E. Cosner and he has been active in arousing citizens of the county to the dangers at this time.

Although warnings of caution have been used to alert the communities, special emphasis has been placed on the use of every precaution and safety device known to prevent fires in grass and forests. All persons are advised to notify local forest protectors or the Pinnacle Fire Tower at once.

The observer at the tower is Edward W. Shoemaker, and when a fire is discovered, he or she is asked to call Shoemaker at once, telephone number 14F1, Keyser.

This call, if made immediately, may prevent a serious fire and may result in saving lives or serious injury to persons at the scene of the fire.

The danger is always there, the fire watchers say, every fall period, but this fall, is the worst that has been experienced here in a number of years, because there has not been enough rain to dampen the ground and the grass, trees and other vegetation.

A small spark might cause a huge conflagration within minutes because of the tinder quality of the brush, grass and other vegetation.

The carelessness of one person in the woods might cause terrible loss and suffering, say local men in Keyser who know the general situation in the outlying areas of the county.

Farmer's Tax Bill Rises 89 Per Cent In 12 Years

Farm property, highway-use and sales tax paid by Maryland farmers have increased 89 per cent in the last 12 years, a University of Maryland study reports. A new Agricultural Experiment Station publication describes trends in Maryland farm tax liabilities from 1940 to 1953.

W. P. Walker, F. E. Hulse and P. E. Nystrom, the Agricultural economists who wrote the report, say higher farm taxes were inevitable, in view of greater emphasis on improved roads and better schools, the two most important state and local government functions serving farmers.

On the whole, they say, the state and county tax system has an equal impact on farm and non-farm groups.

Total farm property taxes were $3,744,105 in 1940-41 as compared with $5,145,678 in 1951-52, or an increase of 36 per cent. Farm real estate taxes per acre increased from 73 cents in 1940-41 to $1.02 in 1951-52.

In 1940-41 farm property assessments totaled $250,910,710, or $1.56 per capita of farm population. The non-farm taxable basis was $1,901,392,290 or $1.185 per capita.

By 1950-51 the total assessed valuation against farm property increased to $1,506 per capita of farm population, in contrast to $1,463 per capita full rate taxable basis for the non-farm population.

Highway-user tax liabilities of Maryland farmers in 1951-52 were nearly twice what they were in 1940-41, the totals being $2,837,000 in 1951-52 as compared with $1,488,000 in the earlier year.

Since food production on farms is the principal source of non-cash income of farm families, the complete exemption of food from the Maryland sales tax makes that tax apply more uniformly between farm and non-farm families than do sales taxes in most other states.

The three most important farmers' taxes in Maryland amounted to a liability of about $9,863,000 in 1951-52, as compared with $5,232,000 in 1940-41, or an increase of nearly 89 per cent during the 12-year period.

Farmers' property taxes, on a per capita basis, were about the same as the per capita property tax of the non-farm groups in 1951-52. Per capita highway-user taxes for farmers were $19.76 as compared with $19.41 for the non-farmers. Sales taxes equaled $13.10 per capita for the farmers and $11.98 for the non-farmers.

Keyser Reports Much Building

KEYSER—The past spring and summer has been marked by increased building and remodeling in Keyser.

With the fall season beginning, another improvement is being made on North Davis Street, where the First Methodist Church has begun clearing ground and doing excavation work preparatory to building an addition to the church. Work started last week and will be rushed before bad weather interferes.

The addition will become a part of the present building. It will be an ell-shaped educational building, two stories high with a basement, extending to the alley line. The church officers have plans and specifications for a complete remodeling of the structure, but due to insufficient funds, it was decided to spread the work over a long term period. An estimate of the cost for the complete building work is $120,000.

On North Davis Street, work is nearing completion on the brick recreation building being erected by the congregation of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church. This work has been underway for the past couple of months and has reached the point where it will be finished within the near future. The interior work will be continued during the winter months.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—I'm gasping! Millions and millions of dollars will be spent by MGM on a remake of "Ben Hur," one of the greatest stories and one of the all-time money makers.

In 1923 Ramon Navarro was starred in "Ben Hur," and the picture was made in Rome and took three years to complete.

Now, Nicholas Schenck and Dore Schary have decided General Wallace's great religious spectacle is perfect for Cinemascope, especially after taking a look at the grosses of "The Robe."

The 1954 version will also be made in Rome, and I'll bet my best hat against a plug nickel that Robert Taylor will have the lead. Of course, "Ben Hur" chariot races, early Christians et al, will be filmed in technicolor, and money will be no object.

In our town tomorrow will be Dino De Laurentiis and Carlo Ponti, producers of "Bitter Rice," "Anna" and "Ulysses," and Ralph Serpe, American representative of Italian Film Export.

De Laurentiis and Ponti have signed Yul Brynner to star in "Judith Oliphant," taken from a Bible story. This means that Brynner will not make a picture for Paramount. He'll have as his costar Sylvano Mangano, star of "Bitter Rice."

A cocktail party is being given in honor of the Italian producers to give Hollywood a chance to meet them. Italian film productions are at an all-time high now.

All is not in the deep freeze for Betty Grable to do "The Pleasure of All Mine" at Columbia after all. New developments have cropped up since Betty took a suspension from 20th (eventually it led to the ending of her contract) rather than do this musical.

Said developments are: The script has been completely rewritten much more to the liking of the Grable; Mrs. Dick Haymes (the recent Rita Hayworth) who inherited the picture after Grable walked, won't do it; and, lastly, Betty is getting in the frame of mind to work again after many happy summer months being just Mrs. Harry James and "Mama" to their two daughters.

There was such secrecy surrounding Elizabeth Bentley's visit to Hollywood that very few people knew she was in town. She came to do a radio show for Dick English called "Last Man Out," which is a violent attack on communism. Dick is having different guests on his show who have gone on record against the Reds. He has done great work writing against these unsavory characters.

Miss Bentley's testimony was largely responsible in landing Alger Hiss and William Remington behind the bars. Dick says she asked to see my house and he drove her past. If only I'd known, I might have had a story!

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Olivia de Havilland returns today from New York after seeing Pierre Galante off for Paris. She'll join him after she makes "The Human Beast" and one other film.

No girl has ever fought harder to get to Korea than Marilyn Monroe. Now it looks as if she'll get a chance to make a trip there before she starts "Pink Tights" in early December.

Jane Greer (in private life Mrs. Ed Lasker) will take time out again to have another baby in late spring.

Police were called in to chase prowlers at the Dennis Day home. Ava Gardner and Frankie Sinatra plan in TWA early Saturday morning. Frankie heads for Las Vegas and The Sands, but first he'll discuss a movie offer.

An impacted wisdom tooth put Judy Garland in the Jevne Hospital for a day. Dr. Berto Olson, exodontist, did the job. She'll be back at Warners Tuesday.

Aryn Stephanie, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tyrone Power, was to be baptized today in our little Beverly Hills Church of the Good Shepherd.

Pierre Lamure, author of "Moulin Rouge," arrived in New York over the weekend. He heads for Hollywood and will finish his book here.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Knowing the shape of your face and applying the right beauty principles pay greatest rewards!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

No woman need be unattractive. She won't be, either, unless she refuses to take the trouble to discover her natural beauty and make the most of it. And actually, the finding and nurturing of beauty is a rewarding creative activity.

When it's your own beauty that you are discovering and developing, the pleasure is intensified.

The basic factor in this pursuit is the analysis of your face and figure. Unless you know what your problem is, you cannot intelligently correct it. For instance do you really know your face shape? Do you know whether it is rectangular, square, round, diamond, triangle or oval? Too few women do. Here's the way to find out:

Right after a shampoo, while your hair is still wet, slick it back from your face as smoothly as you can. Take a rectangular picture frame, 6" x 9" or a piece of cardboard cut like one. Sit before your mirror and center your face in the frame.

Your Face Shape
If your face follows the lines of the frame in approximately the same proportions, your face is rectangular. If your face is square it will follow three sides of the frame but fall considerably short of the frame in length.

A round face will form a circle that is in complete contradiction to each side of the frame. If your face is diamond shape it will tend to point to the frame at the top of the forehead, the chin and the cheekbones while the remaining outer edges of the face form angles to the sides of the frame.

A triangle is your face type if the top of your forehead runs parallel to the top of the frame and your chin points toward the frame's lower edge.

If you have an oval face, your face will form an ellipse within the frame. If it does, you are the lucky one—the oval face is considered the most beautiful of all and is the standard of classic beauty.

Cultivating Beauty
Now that you know what type of face you have, you are ready to cultivate its beauty. How do you go about it? You learn how to apply cosmetics and dress your hair in a manner that will tend to "ovalize" the shape of your face. You choose your hats with this goal in mind as well.

How do you find out the techniques for this beautification? By reading this column every day. Practical means of accomplishing your beauty goal are featured in it regularly.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (INS) — People, places, things...

Looks like we were accidentally right about India as an arbitrator. We shoved her off the Korean Peace Convention, despite the howls of rage from the Reds and from many of our friends in UN. Seems we promised Syngman Rhee that we'd do this, and were afraid the old man would renege the shooting war in Korea if we went back on our word.

Probably just as well, judging from the way the Indians are "policing" the preliminaries leading up to the pressures we've agreed to have put on anti-communist POWs we captured in Korea. India, in charge of the 5-nation group of so-called neutrals, appears to have been eulched into backing more Communist plans for the persuading sessions than free plans. On top of that, the supposedly passive Indian troops have been exceedingly trigger-happy around the compounds. But only against anti-Communists.

Ex-Marine Bill Veeck, forced out of baseball by Del Webb of the Yankees and other owners who consider him a menace to the sport, promises to turn up again. "Like a bad penny," he said, with a large grin. He will, too. He's the best promoter in baseball today.

A reporter asked him if he believed he was the victim of a personal attack. He shook his head. "No, I don't think so," Bill said. Then he added, "at least, that's my privilege."

One of the visiting baseball writers took his girl friend into the press box at the Yankee Stadium early in the World Series. There were gasps of dismay from the old hands. Dolls never never are permitted to sit with the baseball-writing bucks, though it might help some of us.

Anyways, the nice lady was told to leave, go, disappear, vamoose. She did, and it may have been a relief to her as well as to the man in charge. She apparently was not a real gone gal about the game. As she got up to leave the press box a loud speaker barked, "That play was four to three," meaning, in baseball writing language, that the put-out had been made via the second baseman to the first baseman.

The doll looked at her watch, as she listened to the announcement and said, "Four to three? Oh, dear, I'm slow. I've got only twenty till three."

Everybody, everything, has a publicity man now. Just got a letter from the veterinary department of the Protectorate of Uganda, Eastern Equatorial Africa. We seldom correspond.

"Figures issued by the Department," it says, "show that the protectorate now has over two and three-quarters million cattle and three and one half million sheep and goats."

Bully! But there's no mention of another addition to Uganda. It's foreign minister, a short friendly man who affects green suits and teeth parted in the middle, has a pair of Sherman Billingsley's red suspenders. I know. I gave them to him a couple of years ago, after meeting him on a tour of Boys Town.

He was quite touched, and asked if there was anything he could do for me. The offer has worried me ever since. What, for instance, would I do with all those poison arrows?

Had a real dead one dropped in my lap recently. The story that Frank Costello led the blood-doing that saved the life of a guard's wife at a local lockup. Never happened, several inmates and jail officials assure me. I plan to go back to journalism school for a refresher course.

Clutch Yankee Homers Sink Dodgers In Fifth Game, 11-7

Mantle Belts Grand Slam Blow In Third

Meyer Is Victim; McDonald, Podres Kayoed; 36,775 Watch

BROOKLYN, Oct. 4 (AP)—Mickey Mantle switching madly from hero to goat and back again, hit a crushing grand slam home run off reliever Russ Meyer's first pitch today as the New York Yankees bombed Brooklyn, 11-7, in a wild slugfest to regain the World Series lead, three games to two.

Needing only one more victory to clinch an unprecedented fifth straight championship, the Yankees go home to Yankee Stadium for tomorrow's sixth game and seventh, if necessary.

McDonald Knocked Out
Jim McDonald, Manager Casey Stengel's desperation starter, yielded 11 Dodger singles before Billy Cox's three-run homer in the eighth knocked him out. Lefty Bob Kuzava and finally Allie Reynolds, with his aching back, were needed to make sure the Dodgers were dead for the day.

Six home runs sailed through the sunny air to tie a series record set by the Yankees and Chicago Cubs, Oct. 1, 1932. The Yankees' total of four was only one short of their own mark, hung up by the 1928 "Murderers' Row" against St. Louis.

The blow Mantle hit off Meyer, who had just replaced 21-year-old Johnny Podres, stunned the big Sunday crowd of 36,775, exactly the same number that set a new series record yesterday. The Dodgers never were able to recover their balance although they thrashed around violently in the eighth and ninth.

Mantle's homer topped a cluster of five unearned runs in the third, an inning that let the air out of Dodger hopes for a clean sweep in their friendly ballpark.

A vital error by Gil Hodges on Joe Collins' smash off first base put the Yankees in position for their big third inning. The error let Phil Rizzuto score from second and put the rookie Podres in a tough hole.

Bauer Is Hit
The kid southpaw hit Hank Bauer on the right wrist and walked Yogi Berra on a 3-1 pitch to fill the bases. Manager Chuck Dressen decided to call Meyer, the hot tempered ex-Phil who had been warming up since the start of the game.

Russ strode in to face Mantle, four times a strikeout victim of Carl Erskine in Friday's game. Mantle, batting lefty, rode the first pitch high into the upper stands in left about 390 feet away.

Gene Woodling slammed Podres' fourth pitch into the center field seats, a 395 foot poke, leading off for the Yankees. It was the first time a series player had opened up with a homer since Detroit's Davey Jones in 1909.

Brooklyn had McDonald on the ropes in the second when he was lucky to escape with only one run on singles by Roy Campanella and Gil Hodges and a wild throw by Phil Rizzuto on Carl Furillo's double play ball.

Hodges Is Doubled
The Dodgers had men on first and third with nobody out and a run in when Woodling took Billy Cox's fly ball and doubled Hodges at the plate with a beautiful no-bounce throw to Berra.

Mantle's homer in the five-run third gave the Yankees a 6-1 cushion that looked mighty soft to McDonald, the fellow the Yankees tried to trade away all last winter.

Billy Martin, the series' leading batter with 10 hits, only two short of the record, blasted a Meyer pitch into the handy left field stands following Berra's single in the seventh, widening the gap to 8-2. Rizzuto's single and McDonald's double that took a bad hop later Jackie Robinson ran it to 9-2 in the same inning.

McDonald finally got the business in the eighth after so many close escapes. Singles by Robinson, Campanella and Furillo produced one run and brought up Cox whose three-run homer closed the gap to 10-6.

State May Lose All Minor Loop Affiliations

Hagerstown On Rocks By Attendance Drop

By HARRY WARNER, Jr.
Hagerstown Herald Staff Writer

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 4 (AP)—Maryland, which sparked the gleam for many of baseball's greatest stars, may not have a minor league club next year, for the first time in more than a half-century.

Minor league baseball in Maryland, which boomed for a brief time after World War Two, dropped to two clubs this past summer, the Baltimore Orioles and Hagerstown Braves.

Baltimore lost its minor league rating by the simple process of getting a major league franchise. Hagerstown is threatened with the loss of its Piedmont League franchise because Owner Eugene Raney is dissatisfied with attendance.

As recently as five years ago, minor league baseball had six Maryland franchises—Baltimore, Hagerstown, and four Eastern Shore League cities: Salisbury, Easton, Cambridge, and Federalburg. They attracted some 375,000 fans.

But the Eastern Shore League broke up, knocking out baseball in all of its cities except Salisbury, which found a new home in the Inter-State League. The Inter-State League failed to operate in 1953.

Hagerstown fans are attempting to keep their franchise. Raney at various times has been reported willing to stay in Hagerstown, if he gets a sufficiently large advance sale over the winter, or willing to sell the franchise if Hagerstown interests will meet his price. But the situation is complicated by the fact that the Milwaukee Braves have suddenly ended the working agreement with Raney which had produced two pennant winners and a second place club in the past three years.

Sporadic efforts to put other Maryland cities like Cumberland and Frederick into minor league baseball haven't succeeded up now. In some cases, television and closeness to major league cities are the stumbling block, while other cities lack facilities for night baseball.

Increased costs of operating minor league teams are also blamed by veteran Maryland baseball men for the present situation. The Hagerstown club, for instance, drew some 57,000 fans this year, but lost money. Back in the days when Marylanders like Lefty Grove, Babe Ruth, and Jimmy Foxx were playing on sandlots, there was a rule of thumb that calculated a successful season as occurring when a team's draw equaled the city's population.

Bobcat Booters Defeat Alumni

FROSTBURG, Oct. 4—The Frostburg State Bobcats scored their first soccer victory yesterday by defeating an Alumni team here, 3-0. The winners tallied a penalty shot by Ed Thompson in the third quarter and the center half booted home two field goals in the fourth stanza.

Play-By-Play Of Yankees' Fifth Series Game Victory

First Inning YANKEES
Woodling hit a home run into the centerfield stands. Collins flied to Snider. Reese threw out Bauer. Berra lined to Snider. One run, one hit, no errors, none left.

First Inning DODGERS
Gilliam blooped a single over Rizzuto's head. Mantle took Reese's high pop. Snider struck out. Robinson forced Gilliam at second. McDougald to Martin.

No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Second Inning YANKEES
Cox threw out Mantle. Martin tried to check his swing but accidentally tapped the ball in front of plate and was thrown out. Campanella to Hodges. McDougald bounced to Cox.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Second Inning DODGERS
Campanella singled to center. Hodges hit a Texas League single into short center, Campanella stopping at second. Furillo hit what looked like a double play ball to shortstop, but Rizzuto threw wild past Martin at second, enabling Campanella to score and Hodges to race to third. Furillo reached first on the error. Cox lined to Woodling in medium left and Hodges, attempting to score after the catch was cut down at the plate to Berra. Furillo held first on the play. Podres singled to center, Furillo holding up at second. Martin stopped Gilliam's hot smash with his chest and threw to Collins for the out.

One run, three hits, one error, two left.

Third Inning YANKEES
Rizzuto walked. McDonald sacrificed Campanella to Gilliam. Rizzuto taking second.

Podres threw out Woodling as Rizzuto advanced to third. Collins' tricky one-bouncer skirted off Hodges' glove into right field. Rizzuto scoring and Collins reaching first on the error. Bauer was hit on the right wrist, moving Collins to second. Berra walked.

Upper Potomac Kennel Club Sanctioned Match Is Oct. 25

Grounds committee includes William Day, Frostburg, and Philip Carolan, Cumberland. Concessions will be handled by Miss Norma Nelson, Frostburg, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fritz, and George Parker, Cumberland.

Entries registrations will be under the direction of Arthur Ramey, Mrs. Earl Smith, Mrs. Henrietta Snyder, Miss Margaret Neumann, Mrs. Donald Prichard and Mrs. Thomas N. Berry.

Mrs. Melvin Wigfield and Mrs. R. J. Boniece will attend the gate.

Classes to be judged at the match, approved by the American Kennel Club, will be puppy, American Bred and Open in both sexes. Ribbons will be awarded and the match will be held in accordance with AKC rules and regulations.

Two teams divided the first two games with Keyser Ridge opening the first, 14-7, and Wellersburg evening the series with a 5-1 victory last week.

Danny Cullen, although needing help from George Richards and Bob Keister in the eighth, was the winning hurler.

The winning rally was highlighted by a two-run homer by Ossie Nelson. Tom Dunn collected a triple and single and Jack Brode three singles to pace the Keyser Ridge attack.

Cullen left the scene when Kennell and Charley O'Baker hit successive singles in the eighth for Wellersburg. After Richards fanned both Duckworth and Shaffer, Don Hanel hit a pinch single and when Keister fumbled the ball in right two runs scored. When two more Wellersburg batters reached base, Keister came in to fan Bridges to retire the side.

O'Baker had a triple besides his single and Kennell and Chuck Ehrlich each had two bingles for Wellersburg. The score: WELLERSBURG 10 000 320-5 10 2 Cullen, Richards (8), R. Keister (8) and Connors, Felker, Duckworth (7) and Kennell.

The idea of the now popular "ten cent store" originated in Watertown, N. Y.

R. J. Boniece will attend the gate.

Classes to be judged at the match, approved by the American Kennel Club, will be puppy, American Bred and Open in both sexes. Ribbons will be awarded and the match will be held in accordance with AKC rules and regulations.

Berle Is Back

When Goodman Ace took over his duties as head writer and producer for Milton Berle, he boasted that he would transform Mr. B. from a comic into a comedian. In the past, there was plenty of eight to five around Lindy's that this couldn't be done, some of the denizens even forgetting themselves to the point of offering two to one, which was very careless of them.

Well, that was a couple of years ago. The education of Mr. Berle, the growing accumulation of dignity around his aging head, has proceeded apace. In fact, it really looks as if Mr. Ace might pull it off. The age of miracles has not yet passed.

Mr. Television's opening show of the season is an event comparable to the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace or maybe the first frost. When Berle first appears on the little screen, the birds fly south—which won't do them a bit of good because you can get Berle down south, too. This year the first show was a honey in every respect. Mr. Berle was easily surrounded by some very expert regulars, Ruthie Gilbert as his adoring secretary Maxine, and Arnold Stang, a squeak that walks like a man, as Francis, a stagehand in love with Maxine. Helping out the regular crew were two guests, Tallulah Bankhead and Frank Sinatra. What more can you ask? Since Ace has taken over the operation of the Berle show, the opening of the show, sometimes too much. The opening show dealt with the efforts of both Mr. Berle and Mr. Sinatra to become Miss Bankhead's leading lady. This led to the three of them doing a little sketch about the reuniting of a couple of vaudevillians, a bit of terrible corn that was redeemed by the authority and charm of its three very skilled players.

Apart from this nonsense, designed I expect as just one more step in the process of making Berle respectable, there were some very funny passages between Mr. Berle and Tallulah, Berle and Ruthie and Ruthie and Stang. The Tallulah joke is, of course, an old joke and it takes great ingenuity to keep it going. I thought the writers did pretty well.

"I called her and a man answered so I hung up."

"That was Tallulah."

Berle to Tallulah: "I didn't realize you were so interested in the national pastime."

"Darling, I am the national pastime."

"Shouldn't we get down to cases?"

"Dahling, never before dinner."

"Don't lower your voice to me."

"I wouldn't have anything to do with you if you were the last man on earth... wait a minute! Let me think that over. Well, I'll cross that bridge when I come to it."

I have watched the development of Miss Bankhead as a TV comedienne with great interest and some scepticism for about a year now and I'm happy to report that she's getting better every minute. On her first appearance, I well recall, the whole Bankhead body kept waving about like an orator in a high wind. She's cut that out; the timing is pretty close to perfect and the voice and face are about as expressive as they could be.

And while we're about it, let's consider the evolution of Frank Sinatra, which has been pretty remarkable, too. A couple of years ago, on the basis of some very touching and funny sketches on his own show, I suggested that Sinatra ought to broaden his activities, that he was a very interesting actor. Since then "From Here to Eternity" has vindicated me on that score for which I got roundly abused at the time.

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

PLAY AGAINST OTHERS

YOUR attitude toward safety plays, whereby you deliberately give up one or more tricks to increase the likelihood of making your contract, or perhaps assure it, is sound in rubber bridge, in which the value of extra tricks is slight. In a duplicate tournament, however, you are playing not only against the two people at your own table, but against those at other tables who strive to do better than you on the same cards. You must therefore judge your actions on a basis of how you think they compare with moves made at other tables.

you take the same number of tricks. But then, during the play, he forgot all about the second part of that, "if you take the same number of tricks."

When the spade 5 lead to the J was won by his K, he noted that if the missing high honors in the red suits were adversely located, he might get only eight tricks, with three in spades, four in hearts and one in diamonds. To insure his contract, he led a low club. After East let the J win, South led the heart 10 to West, who returned his fifth spade. South took that with the 10 and all told got his nine tricks.

When South then looked at the score sheet, he noted that everybody took more tricks than he, whether in heart or No Trump contracts, some of them eleven and the rest ten. He therefore had a cold bottom score, for observing a safety-first policy instead of going for the probabilities of the situation.

If South had seen fit to bid 2-Hearts on his second turn, indicating possibly only three cards of the suit, the pair would have reached a heart game, which was the contract at most tables. This South, however, was a newcomer to duplicate, albeit a good rubber player, who had heard that No Trump contracts pay in duplicate, as they will beat suit contracts if

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—I'm gasping! Millions and millions of dollars will be spent by MGM on a remake of "Ben Hur," one of the greatest stories and one of the all-time money makers.

In 1923 Ramon Navarro was starred in "Ben Hur," and the picture was made in Rome and took three years to complete.

Now, Nicholas Schenck and Dore Schary have decided General Wallace's great religious spectacle is perfect for Cinemascope, especially after taking a look at the grosses of "The Robe."

The 1954 version will also be made in Rome, and I'll bet my best hat against a plug nickel that Robert Taylor will have the lead. Of course, "Ben Hur" chariot races, early Christians et al. will be filmed in technicolor, and money will be no object.

In our town tomorrow will be Dino de Laurentiis and Carlo Ponti, producers of "Bitter Rice," "Anna" and "Ulysses," and Ralph Serpe, American representative of Italian Film Export.

De Laurentiis and Ponti have signed Yul Brynner to star in "Judith Oliphant," taken from a Bible story. This means that Brynner will not make a picture for Paramount. He'll have as his co-star Sylvano Mangano, star of "Bitter Rice."

A cocktail party is being given in honor of the Italian producers to give Hollywood a chance to meet them. Italian film productions are at an all-time high now.

All is not in the deep freeze for Betty Grable to do "The Pleasure" All Mine" at Columbia after all. New developments have cropped up since Betty took a suspension from 20th (eventually it led to the ending of her contract) rather than do this musical.

Said developments are: The script has been completely rewritten much more to the liking of the Grable; Mrs. Dick Haymes (the recent Rita Hayworth) who inherited the picture after Grable walked, won't do it; and, lastly, Betty is getting in the frame of mind to work again after many happy summer months being just Mrs. Harry James and "Mama" to their two daughters.

There was such secrecy surrounding Elizabeth Bentley's visit to Hollywood that very few people knew she was in town. She came to do a radio show for Dick English called "Last Man Out," which is a violent attack on communism. Dick is having different guests on his show who have gone on record against the Reds. He has done great work writing against these unsavory characters.

Miss Bentley's testimony was largely responsible in landing Alger Hiss and William Remington behind the bars. Dick says she asked to see my house and he drove her past. If only I'd known, I might have had a story!

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Olivia de Havilland returns today from New York after seeing Pierre Galante off for Paris. She'll join him after she makes "The Human Beast" and one other film.

No girl has ever fought harder to get to Korea than Marilyn Monroe. Now it looks as if she'll get a chance to make a trip there before she starts "Pink Tights" in early December.

Jane Greer (in private life Mrs. Ed Lasker) will take time out again to have another baby in late spring.

Police were called in to chase prowlers at the Dennis Day home. Ava Gardner and Frankie Sinatra planned in TWA early Saturday morning. Frankie heads for Las Vegas and The Sands, but first he'll discuss a movie offer.

An impacted wisdom tooth put Judy Garland in the Jevne Hospital for a day. Dr. Berto Olson, exodontist, did the job. She'll be back at Warners Tuesday.

Aryn Stephanie, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tyrone Power, was to be baptized today in our little Beverly Hills Church of the Good Shepherd.

Pierre Lamure, author of "Moulin Rouge," arrived in New York over the weekend. He heads for Hollywood and will finish his book here.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Knowing the shape of your face and applying the right beauty principles pay greatest rewards!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

No woman need be unattractive. She won't be, either, unless she refuses to take the trouble to discover her natural beauty and make the most of it. And actually, the finding and nurturing of beauty is a rewarding creative activity. When it's your own beauty that you are discovering and developing, the pleasure is intensified.

The basic factor in this pursuit is the analysis of your face and figure. Unless you know what your problem is, you cannot intelligently correct it. For instance do you really know your face shape? Do you know whether it is rectangular, square, round, diamond, triangle or oval? Too few women do. Here's the way to find out:

Right after a shampoo, while your hair is still wet, slick it back from your face as smoothly as you can. Take a rectangular picture frame, 6" x 9" or a piece of cardboard cut like one. Sit before your mirror and center your face in the frame.

Your Face Shape

If your face follows the lines of the frame in approximately the same proportions, your face is rectangular. If your face is square it will follow three sides of the frame but fall considerably short of the frame in length.

A round face will form a circle that is in complete contradiction to each side of the frame. If your face is diamond shape it will tend to point to the frame at the top of the forehead, the chin and the cheekbones while the remaining outer edges of the face form angles to the sides of the frame.

A triangle is your face type if the top of your forehead runs parallel to the top of the frame and your chin points toward the frame's lower edge.

If you have an oval face, your face will form an ellipse within the frame. If it does, you are the lucky one—the oval face is considered the most beautiful of all and is the standard of classic beauty.

Cultivating Beauty

Now that you know what type of face you have, you are ready to cultivate its beauty. How do you go about it? You learn how to apply cosmetics and dress your hair in a manner that will tend to "ovalize" the shape of your face. You choose your hats with this goal in mind as well.

How do you find out the techniques for this beautification? By reading this column every day. Practical means of accomplishing your beauty goal are featured in it regularly.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (INS)—People, places, things...

Looks like we were accidentally right about India as an arbitrator. We shoved her off the Korean Peace Convention, despite the howls of rage from the Reds and from many of our friends in UN. Seems we promised Syngman Rhee that we'd do this, and were afraid the old man would repeat the shooting war in Korea if we went back on our word.

Probably just as well, judging from the way the Indians are "policing" the preliminaries leading up to the pressures we've agreed to have put on anti-Communist POWs captured in Korea. India, in charge of the 5-nation group of so-called neutrals, appears to have been eulogized for backing more Communist plans for the persuading sessions than free plans. On top of that, the supposedly passive Indian troops have been exceedingly trigger-happy around the compounds. But only against anti-Communists.

Ex-Marine Bill Veeck, forced out of baseball by Del Webb of the Yankees and other owners who consider him a menace to the sport, promises to turn up again. "Like a bad penny," he said, with a large grin. He will, too. He's the best promoter in baseball today.

A reporter asked him if he believed he was the victim of a personal attack. He shook his head. "No, I don't think so," Bill said. Then he added, "at least, that's my privilege."

One of the visiting baseball writers took his girl friend into the press box at the Yankee Stadium early in the World Series. There were gasps of dismay from the old hands. Dolls never never are permitted to sit with the baseball-writing bucks, though it might help some of us.

Anyway, the nice lady was told to leave, go, disappear, vamoose. She did, and it may have been a relief to her as well as to the man in charge. She apparently was not a real gone gal about the game. As she got up to leave the press box a loud speaker barked, "That play was four to three," meaning, in baseball writing language, that the put-out had been made via the second baseman to the first baseman.

The doll looked at her watch, as she listened to the announcement and said, "Four to three? Oh, dear, I'm slow. I've got only twenty left three."

Everybody, everything, has a publicity man now. Just got a letter from the veterinary department of the Protectorate of Uganda, Eastern Equatorial Africa. We seldom correspond.

"Figures issued by the Department," it says, "show that the protectorate now has over two and three-quarters million cattle and three and one half million sheep and goats."

In Memoriam

In loving remembrance of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Mary Gantner, who departed this life one year ago today, October 5, 1952.

Since you went first and left us to remain,
One thing we would have to do:
Walk slowly down that beautiful path
For some day we will follow you.

We want to know each step you took,
So that we may do the same,
For some day that lonely road
You'll hear us call your name.

Loving Husband, Daughters, and Son.

Berle Is Back

When Goodman Ace took over his duties as head keeper and writer for Milton Berle, he boasted that he would transform Mr. B. from a comic into a comedian. In fact, there was plenty of eight to five around Lindbergh's that this couldn't be done, some of the denizens even forgetting themselves to the point of offering two to one, which was very careless of them.

Well, that was a couple of years ago. The education of Mr. Berle, the growing accumulation of dignity around his aging head, has proceeded apace. In fact, it really looks as if Mr. Ace might just get off. The age of miracles has not yet passed.

Frank Sinatra. What more can you ask? Since Ace has taken over the celebration processes of the Berle operations an awful lot of plot has crept into the show, sometimes too much. The opening show dealt with the efforts of both Mr. Berle and Mr. Sinatra to become Miss Bankhead's leading lady. This led to the three of them doing a little sketch about the reuniting of a couple of vaudevillians, a bit of terrible corn that was redeemed by the authority and charm of its three very skilled players.

Apart from this nonsense, designed I expect as just one more step in the process of making Berle respectable, there were some very funny passages between Mr. Berle and Tallulah, Berle and Ruthie and Ruthie and Stang. The Tallulah joke is, of course, an old joke and it takes great ingenuity to keep it going. I thought the writers did pretty well.

"I called her and a man answered so I hung up."

"That was Tallulah."

Berle to Tallulah: "I didn't realize you were so interested in the national pastime."

"Darling, I am the national pastime."

"Shouldn't we get down to cases?"

"Dahling, never before dinner."

"Don't lower your voice to me."

"I wouldn't have anything to do with you if you were the last man on earth... wait a minute! Let me think that over. Well, I'll cross that bridge when I come to it."

I have watched the development of Miss Bankhead as a TV comedienne with great interest and some scepticism for about a year now and I'm happy to report that she's getting better every minute. On her first appearance, I will recall, the whole Bankhead body kept waving about like an orator in a high wind. She's cut that out; the timing is pretty close to perfect and the voice and face are about as expressive as they could be.

And while we're about it, let's consider the evolution of Frank Sinatra, which has been pretty remarkable, too. A couple of years ago, on the basis of some very touching and funny sketches on his own show, I suggested that Sinatra ought to broaden his activities, that he was a very interesting actor. Since then "From Here to Eternity" has vindicated me on that score for which I got roundly abused at the time.

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

PLAY AGAINST OTHERS

YOUR attitude toward safety plays, whereby you deliberately give up one or more tricks to increase the likelihood of making your contract, or perhaps assure it, is sound in rubber bridge, in which the value of extra tricks is slight. In a duplicate tournament, however, you are playing not only against the two people at your own table, but against those at other tables who strive to do better than you on the same cards. You must therefore judge your actions on a basis of how you think they compare with moves made at other tables.

you take the same number of tricks. But then, during the play, he forgot all about the second part of that, "if you take the same number of tricks."

When the spade 5 lead to the J was won by his K, he noted that if the missing high honors in the red suits were adversely located, he might get only eight tricks, with three in spades, four in hearts and one in diamonds. To insure his contract, he led a low club. After East led the J win, South led the heart 10 to West, who returned his fifth spade. South took that with the 10 and all told got his nine tricks.

When South then looked at the score sheet, he noted that everybody took more tricks than he, whether in heart or No Trump contracts, some of them eleven and the rest ten. He therefore had a cold bottom score, for observing a safety-first policy instead of going for the probabilities of the situation.

Tomorrow's Problem

North	East	South	West
1♥	Pass	2♠	Pass
2♠	Pass	2NT	Pass
3NT

If South had seen fit to bid 2-Hearts on his second turn, indicating possibly only three cards of the suit, the pair would have reached a heart game, which was the contract at most tables. The South, however, was a newcomer to duplicate, albeit a good rubber player, who had heard that No Trump contracts pay in duplicate, as they will beat suit contracts if

How would you plan your play at 4-Hearts in the South if West leads the diamond A and then shifts to the club 10?

Legion Caravan Entertained By Ridgeley Post

Franklin Selected For 1954 Journey

An American Legion caravan representing 16 posts from the 10th District of the Department of West Virginia was entertained yesterday afternoon by Knobley Mountain Post No. 13, American Legion.

Over 300 members of Legion Posts and Auxiliary Units participated in the fourth annual Caravan, one of the Legion's answers to the menace of Communism.

Starting at Charles Town and Franklin, the Legionnaires staged parades in each community on the way before merging to enter Ridgeley shortly before noon yesterday.

Keyser Wins Parade

Keyser Post No. 41 was named winner of the parade held in Ridgeley.

Participating were Martinsburg Post No. 14, Franklin Post No. 30, Keyser Posts No. 41 and 152, Piedmont Post 52, Charles Town Posts 63 and 71, Berkeley Springs Post 60, Moorefield Post 64, Petersburg Post 68, Romney Post 91, Paw Paw Post 128, Kirby Post 135 and Ridgeley Post 136.

A luncheon was served to the visiting legionnaires by members of the Ridgeley post and auxiliary.

State VFW Auxiliary Plans To Run Patriotic Centers

Plans for the operation of a patriotic center by every Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary in Maryland were announced at a state meeting here yesterday at which the Auxiliary of Henry Hart Post served as hostess.

Mrs. Roberta Weber of Baltimore, Department of Maryland VFW Auxiliary president, explained at the state meeting that every VFW Auxiliary in the state is expected to open a patriotic center at the VFW Post home or some other convenient location beginning Armistice Day. These centers are to operate one day each week and will serve as sources of patriotic information for the general public. They will issue information concerning proper display of the American flag and will attempt to answer any questions arising under the general heading of Americanism.

Free Memberships

The state president also reported that the wives of all members of the armed forces who served in Korea during the war are entitled to one year's free membership in the VFW Auxiliary.

Arrangements for the official visit to Maryland of Mrs. Ellie H. Schill of Kansas City, Mo., national president of the VFW Auxiliary, were outlined. Mrs. Schill will appear at the War Memorial Building in Baltimore Friday, November 13.

Mrs. Weber also reported to the approximately 125 women attending the state meeting about her recent visit to the National VFW Auxiliary Home in Eaton Rapids, Mich., where the state maintains a cottage. This home is for the benefit of orphans of veterans.

25 Groups Represented

Twenty-five auxiliaries were represented at the meeting, one of three held outside Baltimore each year. Among those attending were

REV. SETH C. MORROW

Presbyterian Pastor Resigns Local Charge

Accepts Call To Orange, New Jersey

Rev. Seth C. Morrow, 827 Buckingham Road, has announced his resignation as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, to accept a call as pastor of one of the oldest and largest Presbyterian churches in the East, the First Presbyterian Church of Orange, N. J.

Rev. Morrow, his wife, his son David and daughter Elizabeth, came to Cumberland, December 15, 1950 from Pottsville, Pa., where he had been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

During his stay in Cumberland, Rev. Morrow has made an outstanding record at the local church and has also found time to take his place in civic affairs and community responsibility.

Congregation Larger

Membership in the local church has increased by over 200 and now stands at more than 1100. Church groups, societies, associations and clubs within the church have increased in number, membership and activity. He brought to completion the construction of an education building along with extensive remodeling and modernization of the church edifice.

Rev. Morrow was a member of the Cumberland Rotary Club, was a member of the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army here, and was co-chairman of a successful fund campaign which wiped out a 25-year-old mortgage on the Salvation Army citadel and provided funds to remodel the South Cumberland Salvation Army building. He was also elected to membership on the board of the Cumberland Community Chest and was more recently named to the board of directors of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

No Easy Decision

Rev. Morrow said last night, "It is not easy for me to make this announcement. It was with deep and mixed emotion that I announced my resignation to the Session last Friday evening, and to the congregation this (Sunday) morning in order that I may accept a call to the First Presbyterian Church of Orange, New Jersey."

"Since coming to Cumberland, we have formed deep ties of love. We have shared in Christ Jesus the deepest joys and the greatest sorrows of life. We have been bound together in a tremendous and thrilling experience of building the Kingdom of God. The spiritual ties which we have formed in Christ will last forever."

"However, a call has now come to serve the Kingdom of our Lord in another place, and after many hours of thought and prayer during

Burglars Enter Three Piedmont Business Places

Articles Taken From Jewelry Store Found

West Virginia authorities yesterday began an investigation into the unusual burglary of two Piedmont business establishments and the Piedmont Fire Company's club rooms.

Police said a large front plate glass window of the Charles Evans Jewelry Store, 40 Second Street, was smashed and about $75 worth of articles on display taken. Articles stolen included cigarette lighters, several watches, four pair of cuff links and four wallets.

Piedmont Chief of Police James Harrison last night reported some of the stolen articles, including the billfolds, cuff links and an alarm clock, were found by authorities hidden in back of the Mills and Company building, Fairview Street.

Also hidden with the stolen articles, police found an empty .22 calibre rifle. No report was made to police of a rifle being stolen, authorities said.

Another business place burglarized in the breaking and enterings, which police said occurred between 2 and 5 p. m. yesterday, was Dot's Restaurant, 50 Second Street, a few doors away from the jewelry store.

Police said entrance to the restaurant was made by smashing a rear window near the former C&P Railroad tracks. Miss Evelyn Wilt, Everett, Pa., who opened the restaurant about 7:45 a. m., reported nothing was taken.

Police said $1.10, placed on the cash register in view of the culprits, and a billfold containing $15 dollars nearby, were not taken. Also change left hidden by Miss Dorothy Thompson, owner of the establishment, for Miss Wilt, was not removed.

Chief Harrison said a BB rifle was found on the old C&P tracks behind the restaurant, but he did not know if it had any connection with the breaking and enterings.

The burglars entered the firemen's clubrooms, across the street from the jewelry store, by breaking the front door plate glass window. William Hood, fire chief, told police nothing was taken.

Investigating with Harrison are Piedmont Police Officer Eldon "Jake" Saville and Cpl. F. H. Tribett, Keyser, of the West Virginia State Police.

Methodist Group Will Visit Here

The Vincent Men's Bible Class of Franklin Street Methodist Church, Johnstown, Pa., will be guests of the Grace Men's Bible Class on Sunday, October 11, at 9:30 a. m. Wives of members are invited to attend the service.

Members, their wives and friends may join in the morning worship service at 11 a. m. in Grace Methodist Church.

Following the worship service, a Swiss steak dinner has been planned at All Ghan Shrine Country Club for the visitors and members of the class, their wives and friends. Transportation will be provided to the Shrine Club.

Following the dinner, guests from Johnstown will be taken on a sight-seeing tour of points of interest in the Cumberland area.

City Voting Rolls Drop To 14,477

Cumberland's voting rolls dropped 10, to 14,477 during September. Two new voters, a man and a woman, were added to the registration records, but the names of 10 known dead were stricken from the rolls.

Four changes in registration were made.

On October 1, the total registration included: 12 state officers, five of the 16 district presidents, seven past department presidents and 10 department committee chairmen.

Other state officers attending with Mrs. Weber included Marie Bowers, Baltimore, senior vice-president; Ruth Leight, Baltimore, junior vice-president; Nancy G. Simons of Catonsville, secretary; Emma Melville, Baltimore, treasurer; Lottie Schwartz, Baltimore, chaplain; Chloe Reynolds, this city, conductress; Hallie Smith, Dundalk, guard; Marie Spalla, Baltimore, patriotic instructor; Sophy Pape, Pikesville, chief of staff and musician; Viola Warner, Westminster, color bearer, and Garnet Gamber, Westminster, assistant guard.

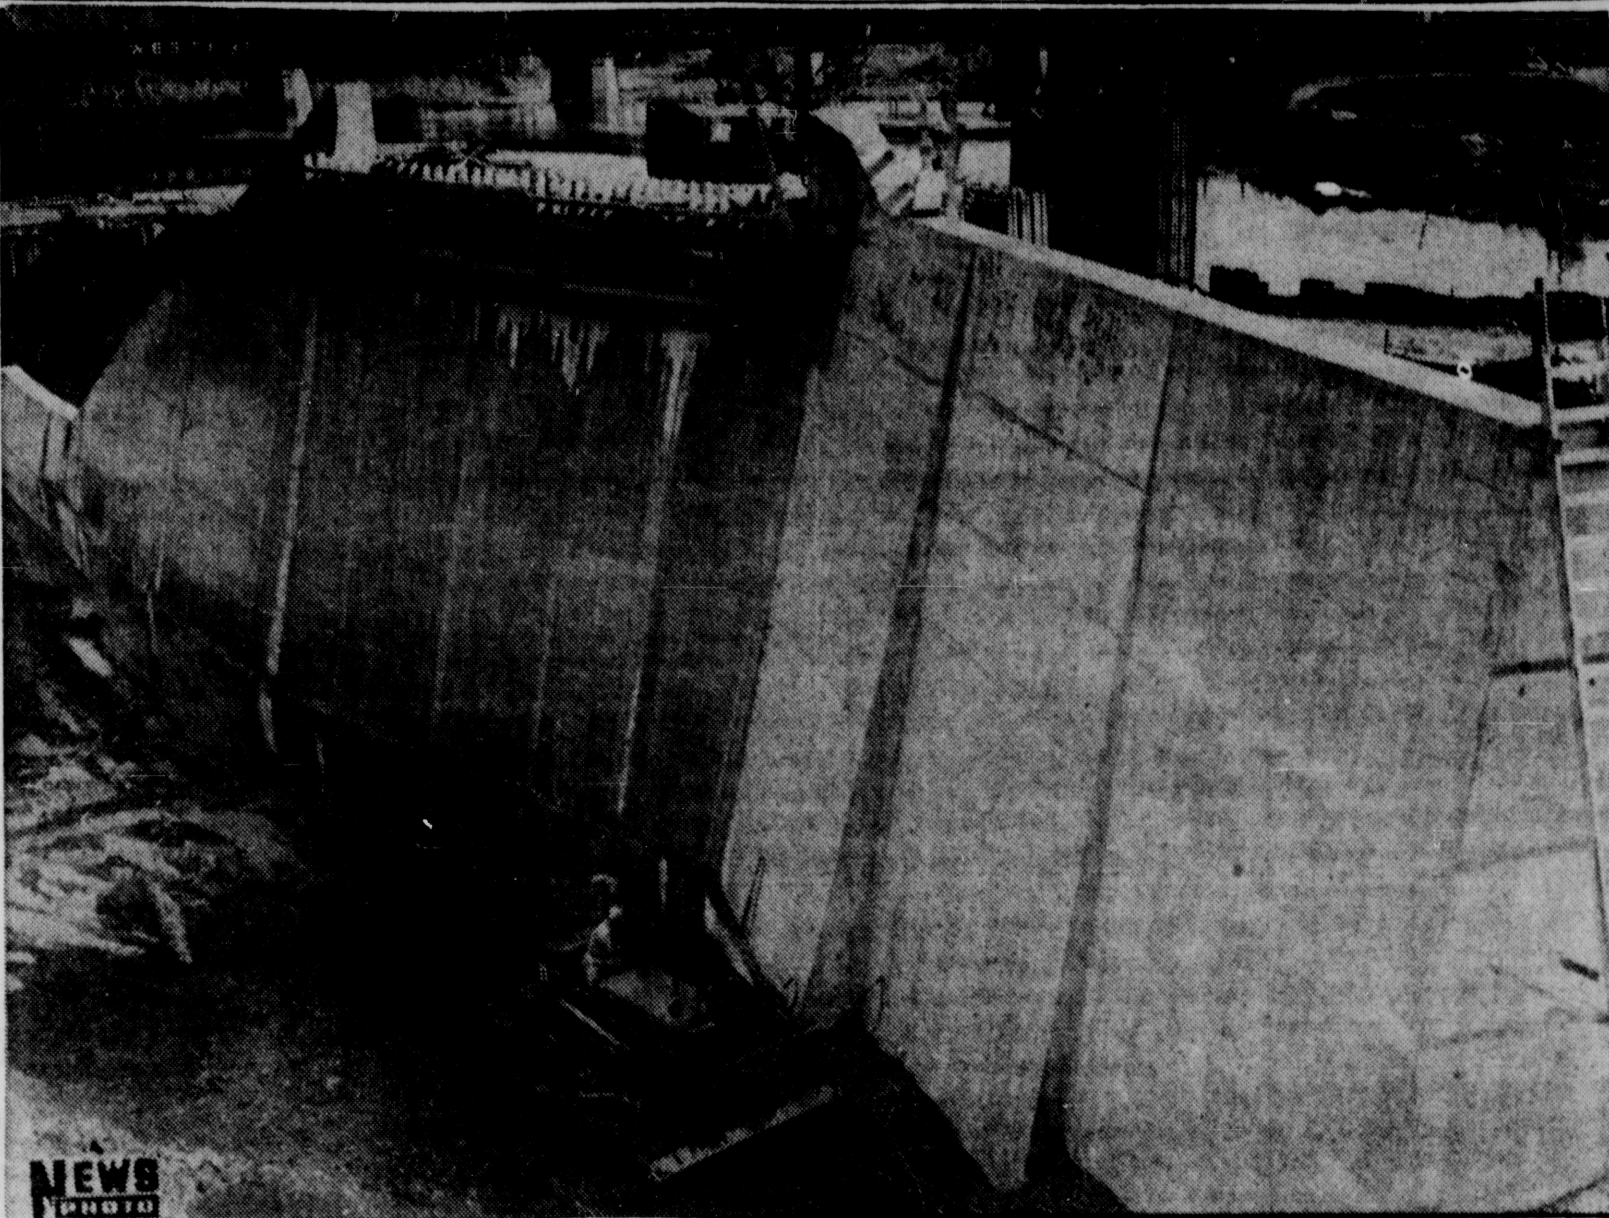

Past department presidents on hand were Elsie Bull, Minnie Fanning, Catherine Leary, Flora Williams, Bernice Elmore and Agnes Saffran, all of Baltimore, and Elsie Kilroy, this city.

Department chairmen who were present included Helen McAvoy, Baltimore, home fund; Josephine Cesenaro, Baltimore, Americanism; Helen Bujac, this city, Newton D. Baker Hospital; Julia Ewing, Abingdon, V.A.S., Perry Point; Lennie Robertson, Baltimore, rehabilitation; Marie Bowers, Baltimore, membership; Lillian Zimmerman, this city, essay; Anna Dugger, Baltimore, publicity; Sophy Pape, Pikesville, Civil Defense; Helen Harris, Baltimore, bond.

Arrangements for the official visit to Maryland of Mrs. Ellie H. Schill of Kansas City, Mo., national president of the VFW Auxiliary, were outlined. Mrs. Schill will appear at the War Memorial Building in Baltimore Friday, November 13.

Mrs. Weber also reported to the approximately 125 women attending the state meeting about her recent visit to the National VFW Auxiliary Home in Eaton Rapids, Mich., where the state maintains a cottage. This home is for the benefit of orphans of veterans.

Flood Work

These photos present an idea of the rapid progress being made in pouring concrete for the new industrial dam and new bridge across the Potomac River here. The dam, a section of which can be seen in the lower photo replaces the present dam, while in the upper picture the wing wall and abutment of the bridge rise steadily as workmen are busy on two shifts daily. The section of the dam and the wing wall are located on the Maryland side of the river, but similar installations are underway on the West Virginia side.

There will be 14 sections of the dam as shown at right, joined together to complete the impounding arrangement. The basin-like form in the foreground below the curved dam section is a silt bed to catch silt and debris during high water. Engineers say the contractor, who has been favored with good weather and low water, is well ahead of his work schedule.

Predicted Rain May Bring Relief From Area Fires

Several more forest fires were reported yesterday in nearby West Virginia but foresters were hoping that rain predicted for today in the Tri-State area would bring with it needed relief from the critical fire danger.

Noting that this is Fire Prevention Week, the foresters urged everyone to exercise extreme caution with matches in the dry woodlands. Hunters in Maryland were especially warned.

Center In Two Counties

Current forest fires in nearby West Virginia are continuing to center in Pendleton and Grant counties.

District Forester Tilden Norris, who serves eight Eastern West Virginia counties from his office in Romney, reported the most recent blaze, near Circleville in Pendleton County, started about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A crew was dispatched to battle it but Norris had no word as to whether it had been brought under control last night.

Another weekend fire, near Mayville in Grant County, burned eight acres of forest timber, but was extinguished yesterday. Two other blazes started Friday in Pendleton County and one in Grant County were still smoldering yesterday but had extended no farther.

Flintstone Fires

Meanwhile, District Forester William H. Johnson here, disclosed that the two Saturday afternoon fires which kept the Flintstone Volunteer Fire Company busy were still smoldering slightly yesterday and burning deep into the ground. They were the last reported in Western Maryland.

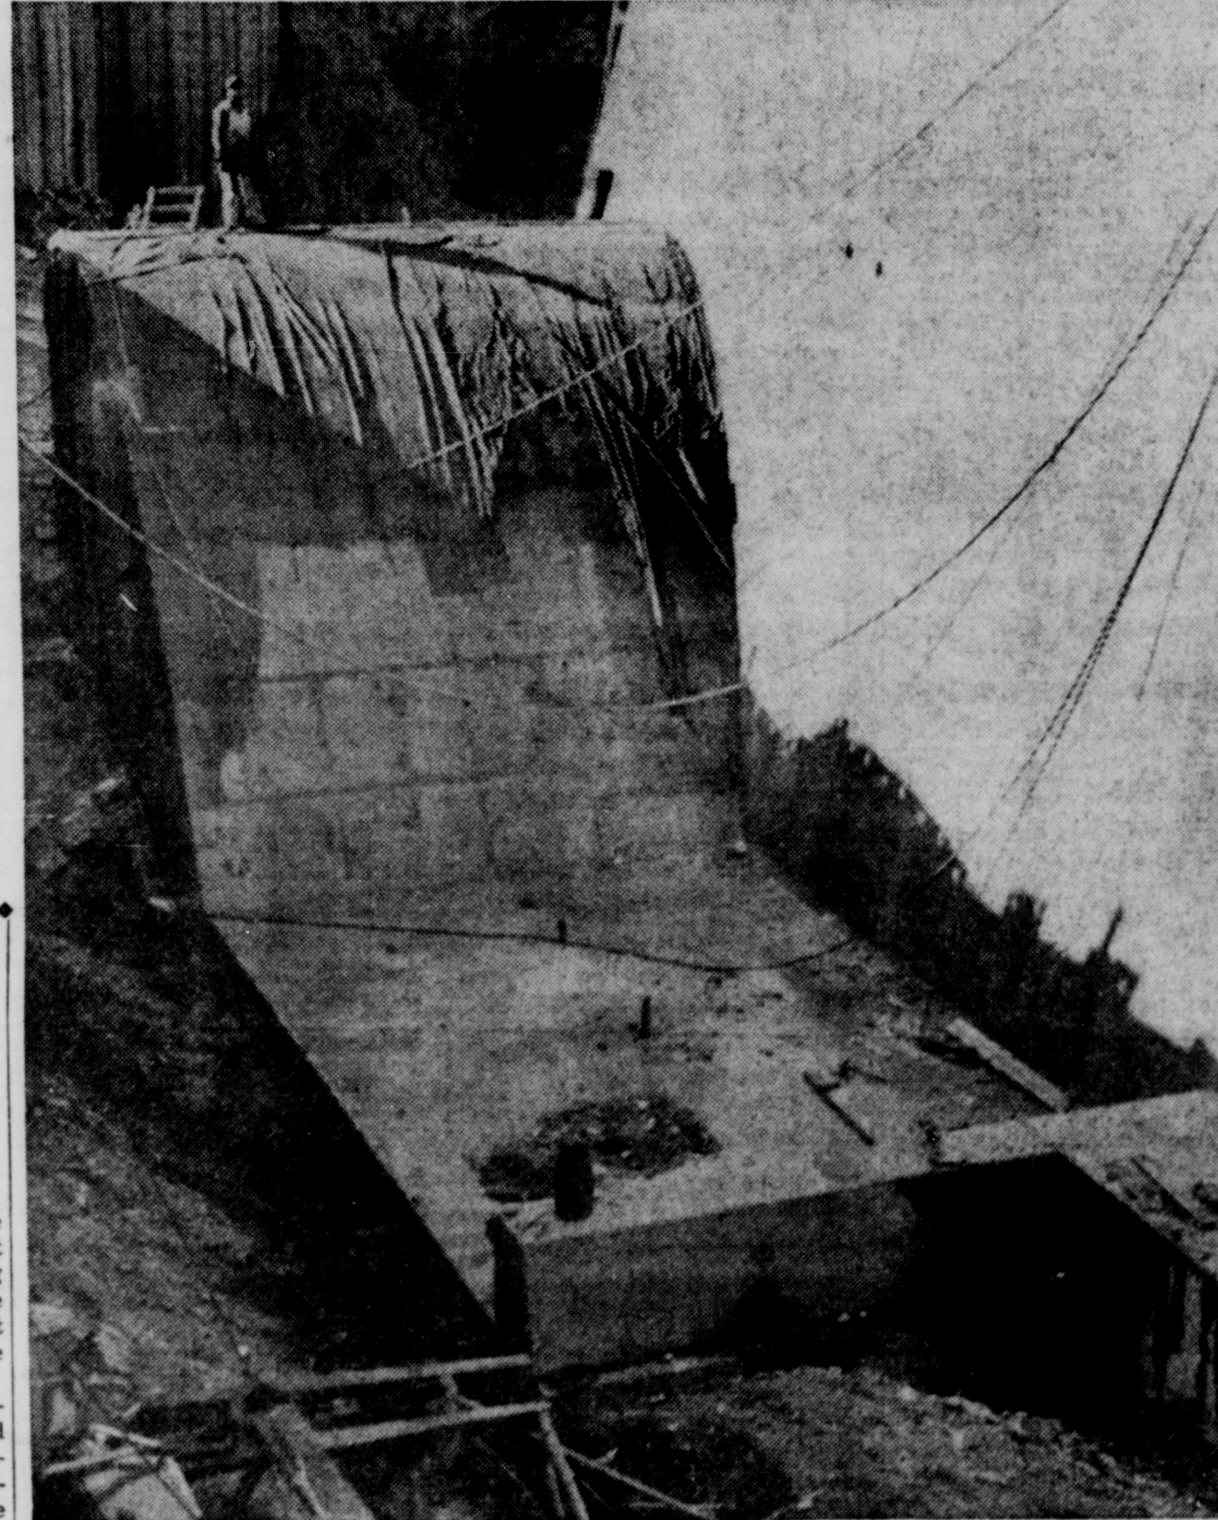

At 2:45 p. m. the firemen went to the John Haines property, five miles below Flintstone on the Town Creek Road, when a fire broke out near the residence. About three acres of brush land burned over just across the road from the Haines home.

After battling this blaze for several hours the firemen had barely returned to the fire hall when they were called to the property of Orville Vance on the Dry Ridge Road, two miles from Flintstone. The fire was in a field overgrown with brush. The firemen were able to douse the fire before it reached a stand of timber nearby.

E. L. Kolb of the fire company said the origin of the two fires could not be determined.

Maneressa Laymen Group Meets Today

The Maneressa Laymen Retreat Group will meet today at 8 p. m. in St. Patrick's Social Center. Persons interested in joining the group are invited to attend the meeting.

Ohioan Killed In Auto Mishap

A 55-year-old Cincinnati, Ohio man was killed Saturday night when the car in which he was riding failed to make a curve over a 28-foot drop.

West Virginia State Police said Charles Kendall McDowell was riding in a car driven by his wife, Mrs. Martha Grace McDowell, when the mishap occurred about 9:30 p. m. Police added the auto rolled over several times. Mrs. McDowell suffered minor bruises.

The body was taken to Uppersville, Va., where the McDowells have a summer home, according to police.

In other accidents over the weekend, three local persons were admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday for treatment of injuries suffered in separate mishaps.

Mrs. Maude Stalling, 72, of Baltimore Pike, was admitted at 11 a. m. with a right ankle injury, suffered in a fall. Her condition was listed as good by attaches.

Lawrence O'Brien, 69, of 924 Glenwood Street, was admitted at 2 p. m. for treatment of a cut hand sustained when the glass on a door was broken.

Margaret Naughton, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Naughton, 34 Marion Street, was admitted at 1:25 p. m. with a severe laceration of the right leg. Attaches said the youngster fell into a ditch near her home while playing.

Today's Sermonette

Today's sermonette is a digest of the sermon preached yesterday at First Brethren Church by the pastor, Rev. Milton M. Robinson. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Our Greatest National Sin

By REV. MILTON M. ROBINSON

Many times, we feel that we are different from people of other ages. But if we would check back through history we would find that people are very much alike in all generations. The fact that we have new inventions and luxuries doesn't seem to make much difference as far as our progress in spiritual things is concerned. The sins that were common to the people of Moses' day are also common to our day. They seem to follow a general pattern. Then, too, the history of people seems to follow a pattern.

One generation reaches a cycle when wickedness seems to run rampant. Then a calamity comes upon that people and the next seems to be a little more righteous. With righteousness a form of prosperity appears. Then when people become comfortable, they forget God. They do not remember Him again until a crisis is reached once more in the affairs of men.

Each generation seems to have its own peculiar sin. Usually, however, there is one sin which is common to all people. This is the sin that Moses spoke of about 5,000 years ago. The children of Israel were guilty of this early in their national life. They were self-righteous. Already they were saying that God was bringing them into the promised land because of their righteousness. This attitude of their being more righteous than others plagued them for the rest of their national life. It didn't gain the fullness of its power until after Solomon. Then, however, we see the prophets continually warning them against the sin of self-righteousness. One common error they committed was the thought that because the temple of the true God was in their midst, they felt that He would not bring judgment upon them. It wasn't until they had been carried away into captivity that they awoke to the fact that God was judging them for their self-righteousness as well as their other sins.

Our nation is in much the same position today. A Catholic magazine conducted a survey which revealed the surprising fact that only 12 per cent of the people interviewed thought in their present condition they would not get to heaven. There is a reason for this.

Our nation guarantees freedom of religion and preaches tolerance so much that we have come to the conclusion it makes no difference what you believe, say or do and you'll still get to heaven. It is true that it makes no difference what you believe, religiously, to be a good citizen of this country.

It, also, is good that we should be tolerant of one another's views. But if we believe that we can think, say, and act as we please and still attain heaven we're due for a sad awakening. This view exalts mankind and makes God a servant for us to command. No one has bothered, apparently, to ask God's views in the matter.

In order to correct this idea of our own righteousness, we must realize that God has never committed judgment into the hands of men. He has committed judgment into the hands of His Son, Jesus Christ. God has not allowed men to set the standard by which they are to be judged. He has set the standard Himself. Therefore, everyone of us would do well to find out what standards God has set and ask ourselves if we meet them. Then we'll be better able to judge ourselves. I can assure you that neither you nor I are as righteous as we think. We will find we've been comparing ourselves with the wrong standard. Men compare themselves with other men, but God compares men

Dam Operation Problems To Get Study Of Group

State Commission To Meet This Month

Members of the new state commission named to study various problems in connection with the Savage River Dam have begun receiving their commissions signed by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin and the body is expected to begin its investigations sometime during October.

Owen E. Hitchins, this city, one of the three members of the Upper Potomac River Commission, has been informed by State Senator Robert B. Kimble that he will serve as chairman of the new investigative body. Hitchins said last night he understood his commission was in the mail now but he had not yet received it. He reported that the first meeting will be held in Cumberland and probably will be arranged for sometime this month.

This new non-salaried commission was created as a result of the passage at the last session of the General Assembly Senate Joint Resolution No. 11, introduced by Senators Neil C. Fraley and Kimble.

The resolution calls upon the commission to give particular emphasis to the problem of the road alongside the dam and providing a wholesale supply of water to the Town of Westport as well as the question of future status and operation also is instructed to submit its recommendations to the General Assembly. These probably will go first to the Legislative Council which viewed the dam and discussed the problem on a visit to Western Maryland in August.

In their resolution, Senators Fraley and Kimble note that the Upper Potomac River Commission was created by act of the Legislature back in 1935 to exercise control over the Savage River Dam.

This agency is still in existence, but the resolution cited that it has little power and no funds for alleviation of problems which have arisen. The commission will seek to determine what should be the controlling authority for the dam and determine the source of funds for its operations.

Members of the investigative commission will be the three members of the Upper Potomac River Commission, John J. McMullen and Hitchins, this city, and Lawrence M. Fraley of Oakland; William H. Lemmert, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners; Jonas W. Sines, president of the Garrett County Board of Commissioners; Russell H. McCain, chairman of the State Roads Commission; Dr. Robert H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health; Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the State Department of Forests and Parks; Attorney-General Edward D. E. Rollins and I. Alvin Passarew, director of the State Planning Commission.

Association Plans Fire Prevention Week Programs

Plans for the observance of Fire Prevention Week this week were reviewed by the Allegany and Garrett County Volunteer Firemen's Association meeting yesterday at the Fire Hall of the Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire Department.

The association speakers' bureau has lined up a number of appearances for the presentation of Fire Prevention Week programs this week and in the near future. Material publicizing the special week also was distributed to the member companies, all of which are scheduling some special activities. Nineteen of the 31 companies were represented.

A luncheon was served by the Mt. Savage Firemen's Auxiliary after the meeting.

Three Boys Arrested For Firing On Town

Three local teen-age boys were arrested by City Police yesterday morning for firing a .22 calibre rifle across the Potomac River into Ridgeley.

City Detective Leo E. Law arrested the trio after he investigated a complaint from Ridgeley residents that the pellets were hitting around Ridgeley Fire Company's hall area.

The three boys, two aged 14 and one 13 years, were picked up at 11:30 a. m. on the river bank near the westbound tracks of the B&O Railroad.

Police released two boys in custody of their parents and another in custody of a friend of his family. The trio will get hearings in Allegany County Juvenile Court.

REV. SETH C. MORROW

Presbyterian Pastor Resigns Local Charge

Accepts Call To Orange, New Jersey

Rev. Seth C. Morrow, 827 Buckingham Road, has announced his resignation as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, to accept a call as pastor of one of the oldest and largest Presbyterian churches in the East, the First Presbyterian Church of Orange, N. J.

Rev. Morrow, his wife, his son David and daughter Elizabeth, came to Cumberland, December 15, 1950 from Pottsville, Pa., where he had been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

During his stay in Cumberland, Rev. Morrow has made an outstanding record at the local church and has also found time to take his place in civic affairs and community responsibility.

Congregation Larger
Membership in the local church has increased by over 200 and now stands at more than 1100. Church groups, societies, associations and clubs within the church have increased in number, membership and activity. He brought to completion the construction of an education building along with extensive remodeling and modernization of the church edifice.

Rev. Morrow was a member of the Cumberland Rotary Club, was a member of the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army here, and was co-chairman of a successful fund campaign which wiped out a 25-year-old mortgage on the Salvation Army citadel and provided funds to remodel the South Cumberland Salvation Army building. He was also elected to membership on the board of the Cumberland Community Chest and was more recently named to the board of directors of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

No Easy Decision
Rev. Morrow said last night, "It is not easy for me to make this announcement. It was with deep and mixed emotion that I announced my resignation to the Session last Friday evening, and to the congregation this (Sunday) morning in order that I may accept a call to the First Presbyterian Church of Orange, New Jersey."

"Since coming to Cumberland, we have formed deep ties of love. We have shared in Christ Jesus the deepest joys and the greatest sorrows of life. We have been bound together in a tremendous and thrilling experience of building the Kingdom of God. The spiritual ties which we have formed in Christ will last forever."

"However, a call has now come to serve the Kingdom of our Lord in another place, and after many hours of thought and prayer during

Burglars Enter Three Piedmont Business Places

Articles Taken From Jewelry Store Found

West Virginia authorities yesterday began an investigation into the unusual burglary of two Piedmont business establishments and the Piedmont Fire Company's club rooms.

Police said a large front plate glass window of the Charles Evans Jewelry Store, 40 Second Street, was smashed and about $75 worth of articles on display taken. Articles stolen included cigarette lighters, several watches, four pair of cuff links and four wallets.

Piedmont Chief of Police James Harrison last night reported some of the stolen articles, including the billfolds, cuff links and an alarm clock, were found by authorities hidden in back of the Mills and Company building, Fairview Street. Also hidden with the stolen articles, police found an empty .22 calibre rifle. No report was made to police of a rifle being stolen, authorities said.

Another business place burglarized in the breaking and enterings, which police said occurred between 2 and 5 p. m. yesterday, was Dot's Restaurant, 50 Second Street, a few doors away from the jewelry store.

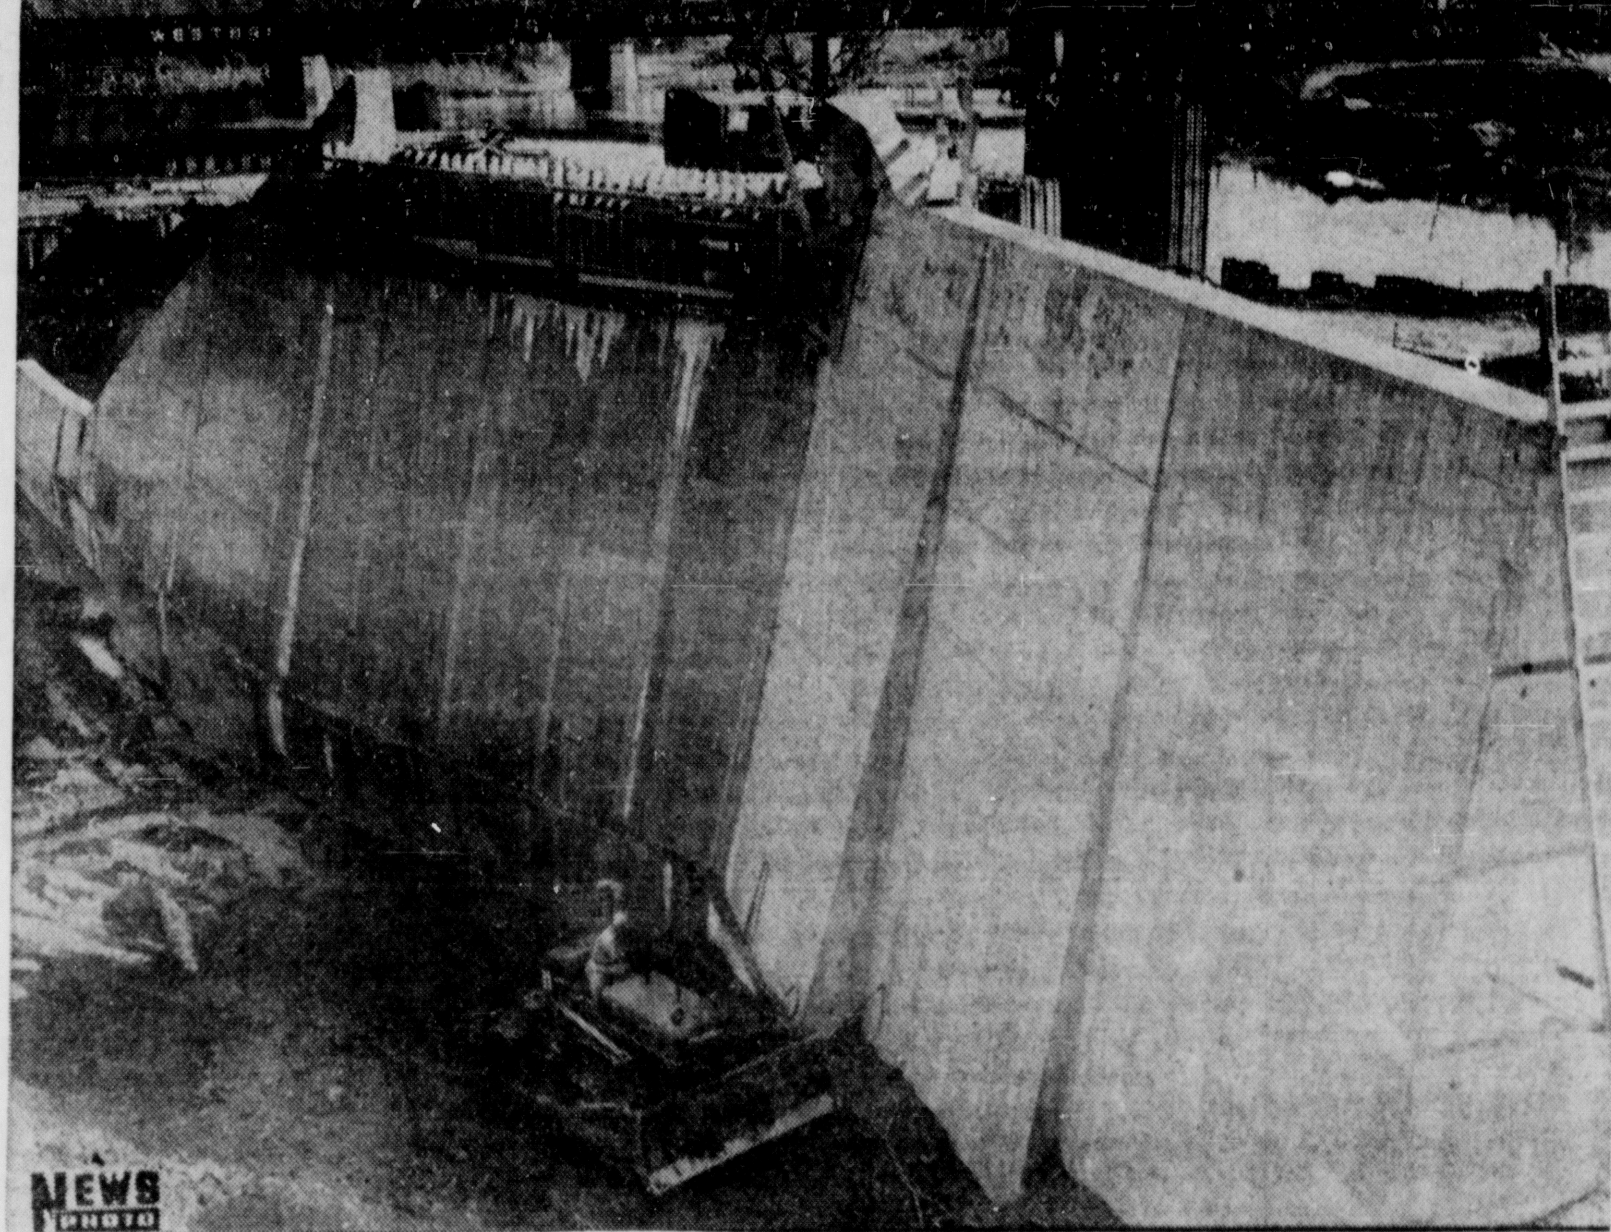

Police said entrance to the restaurant was made by smashing a rear window near the former C&P Railroad tracks. Miss Evelyn Wilt, Everett, Pa., who opened the restaurant about 7:45 a. m., reported nothing was taken.

Police said $110, placed on the cash register in view of the culprits, and a billfold containing $15 dollars nearby, were not taken. Also change left hidden by Miss Dorothy Thompson, owner of the establishment, for Miss Wilt, was not removed.

Chief Harrison said a BB rifle was found on the old C&P tracks behind the restaurant, but he did not know if it had any connection with the breaking and enterings.

The burglars entered the firemen's clubrooms, across the street from the jewelry store, by breaking the front door plate glass window. William Hood, fire chief, told police nothing was taken.

Investigating with Harrison are Piedmont Police Officer Eldon "Jake" Saville and Cpl. F. H. Tribett, Keyser, of the West Virginia State Police.

Flood Work

These photos present an idea of the rapid progress being made in pouring concrete for the new industrial dam and new bridge across the Potomac River here. The dam, a section of which can be seen in the lower photo replaces the present dam, while in the upper picture the wing wall and abutment of the bridge rise steadily as workmen are busy on two shifts daily. The section of the dam and the wing wall are located on the Maryland side of the river, but similar installations are underway on the West Virginia side. There will be 14 sections of the dam as shown at right, joined together to complete the impounding arrangement. The basin-like form in the foreground below the curved dam section is a silt bed to catch silt and debris during high water. Engineers say the contractor, who has been favored with good weather and low water, is well ahead of his work schedule.

Methodist Group Will Visit Here

The Vincent Men's Bible Class of Franklin Street Methodist Church, Johnstown, Pa., will be guests of the Grace Men's Bible Class on Sunday, October 11, at 9:30 a. m. Wives of members are invited to attend the service.

Members, their wives and friends may join in the morning worship service at 11 a. m. in Grace Methodist Church.

Following the worship service, a Swiss steak dinner has been planned at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club for the visitors and members of the class, their wives and friends. Transportation will be provided to the Shrine Club.

Following the dinner, guests from Johnstown will be taken on a sight-seeing tour of points of interest in the Cumberland area.

City Voting Rolls Drop To 14,477

Cumberland's voting rolls dropped to 14,477 during September. Two new voters, a man and a woman, were added to the registration records, but the names of 10 known dead were stricken from the rolls.

Four changes in registration were made. On October 1, the total registration included:

White male, 7,654; white female, 6,533; colored male, 173, and colored female, 97.

News In Brief

Mayor Roy W. Eves will be in Baltimore Tuesday to attend a system B & O Cooperative meeting. Charles A. Piper, president of the Liberty Trust Co., is one of nine Marylanders named Saturday by Gov. McKeldin "to evaluate properly the financial position of the state."

Attaches at Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday said Brother Louis, OFM, Cap., was in "good" condition. The friar was admitted Thursday with injuries suffered in a plunge down a cliff at the foot of Wills Mountain.

Mary Diana Deffenbaugh, three year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Deffenbaugh, of Bowling Green, suffered an injury to her right arm Saturday in a fall from a six foot wall.

The first P.T.A. meeting for Carver School is scheduled for Tuesday, October 13, when four main topics will be considered: Building Committee report; review of State P.T.A. convention; nomination, committee recommendations, and outline of year's program.

Mrs. J. Albert Nichols, 806 Greene Street, and Mrs. Alva W. Davis, 1002 Virginia Avenue left Friday for Shreveport, La., to visit the latter's nephew and his wife, Master Sgt. and Mrs. John T. Brinkman. He is stationed at Bakersdale Air Base.

Predicted Rain May Bring Relief From Area Fires

Several more forest fires were reported yesterday in nearby West Virginia but foresters were hoping that rain predicted for today in the Tri-State area would bring with it needed relief from the critical fire danger.

Noting that this is Fire Prevention Week, the foresters urged everyone to exercise extreme caution with matches in the dry woodlands. Hunters in Maryland were especially warned.

Center In Two Counties
Current forest fires in nearby West Virginia are continuing to center in Pendleton and Grant counties.

District Forester Tilden Norris, who serves eight Eastern West Virginia counties from his office in Romney, reported the most recent blaze, near Circleville in Pendleton County, started about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A crew was dispatched to battle it but Norris had no word as to whether it had been brought under control last night.

Another weekend fire, near Maysville in Grant County, burned eight acres of forest timber, but was extinguished yesterday. Two other blazes started Friday in Pendleton County and one in Grant County but had still smoldering yesterday but had extended no farther.

Flintstone Fires
Meanwhile, District Forester William H. Johnson here, disclosed that the two Saturday afternoon fires which kept the Flintstone Volunteer Fire Company busy were still smoldering slightly yesterday and burning deep into the ground. They were the last reported in Western Maryland.

At 2:45 p. m. the firemen went to the John Haines property, five miles below Flintstone on the Town Creek Road, when a fire broke out near the residence. About three acres of brush land burned over just across the road from the Haines home.

After battling this blaze for several hours the firemen had barely returned to the fire hall when they were called to the property of Orin Vance on the Dry Ridge Road, two miles from Flintstone. The fire was in a field overgrown with brush. The firemen were able to douse the fire before it reached a stand of timber nearby.

E. L. Kolb of the fire company said the origin of the two fires could not be determined.

Maneressa Laymen Group Meets Today

The Maneressa Laymen Retreat Group will meet today at 8 p. m. in St. Patrick's Social Center. Persons interested in joining the group are invited to attend the meeting.

Ohioan Killed In Auto Mishap

A 35-year-old Cincinnati, Ohio man was killed Saturday night when the car in which he was riding failed to make a curve over a half mile north of Romney on Route 28.

West Virginia State Police said Charles Kendall McDowell was riding in a car driven by his wife, Mrs. Martha Grace McDowell, when the mishap occurred about 9:30 p. m. Police added the auto rolled over several times. Mrs. McDowell suffered minor bruises.

The body was taken to Uppersville, Va., where the McDowells have a summer home, according to police.

In other accidents over the weekend, three local persons were admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday for treatment of injuries suffered in separate mishaps.

Mrs. Maude Stalling, 72, of Baltimore Pike, was admitted at 11 a. m. with a right ankle injury, suffered in a fall. Her condition was listed as good by attaches.

Lawrence O'Brien, 69, of 924 Glenwood Street, was admitted at 2 p. m. for treatment of a cut hand sustained when the glass on a door was broken.

Margaret Naughton, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Naughton, 34 Marion Street, was admitted at 1:25 p. m. with a severe laceration of the right leg. Attaches said the youngster fell into a ditch near her home while playing.

Our Greatest National Sin

By REV. MILTON M. ROBINSON

Many times, we feel that we are different from people of other ages. But if we would check back through history we would find that people are very much alike in all generations.

The fact that we have new inventions and luxuries doesn't seem to make much difference as far as our progress in spiritual things is concerned. The sins that were common to the people of Moses' day are also common to our day. They seem to follow a general pattern. Then, too, the history of people seems to follow a pattern.

One generation reaches a cycle when wickedness seems to run rampant. Then a calamity comes upon that people and the next seems to be a little more righteous. With righteousness a form of prosperity appears. Then when people become comfortable, they forget God. They do not remember Him again until a crisis is reached once more in the affairs of men.

Each generation seems to have its own peculiar sin. Usually, however, there is one sin which is common to all people. This is the sin that Moses spoke of about 5,000 years ago. The children of Israel were guilty of this early in their national life. They were self-righteous. Already they were saying that God was bringing them into the promised land because of their righteousness. This attitude of their being more righteous than others plagued them for the rest of their national life. It didn't gain the fullness of its power until after Solomon. Then, however, we see the prophets continually warning them against the sin of self-righteousness. One common error they committed was the thought that because the temple of the true God was in their midst, they felt that He would not bring judgment upon them. It wasn't until they had been carried away into captivity that they awoke to the fact that God was judging them for their self-righteousness as well as their other sins.

Our nation is in much the same position today. A Catholic magazine conducted a survey which revealed the surprising fact that only 12 per cent of the people interviewed thought in their present condition they would not get to heaven. There is a reason for this. Our nation guarantees freedom of religion and preaches tolerance so much that we have come to the conclusion it makes no difference what you believe, say or do and you'll still get to heaven. It is true that it makes no difference what you believe, religiously, to be a good citizen of this country. It, also, is good that we should be tolerant of one another's views. But if we believe that we can think, say, and act as we please and still attain heaven we're due for a sad awakening. This view exalts mankind and makes God a servant for us to command. No one has bothered, apparently, to ask God's views in the matter.

In order to correct this idea of our own righteousness, we must realize that God has never committed judgment into the hands of men. He has committed judgment into the hands of His Son, Jesus Christ. God has not allowed men to set the standard by which they are to be judged. He has set the standard Himself. Therefore, everyone of us would do well to find out what standards God has set and ask ourselves if we meet them. Then we'll be better able to judge ourselves. I can assure you that neither you nor I are as righteous as we think. We will find we've been comparing ourselves with the wrong standard. Men compare themselves with other men, but God compares men

State Commission
To Meet This Month

Members of the new state commission named to study various problems in connection with the Savage River Dam have begun receiving their commissions signed by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin and the body is expected to begin its investigations sometime during October.

Owen E. Hitchins, this city, one of the three members of the Upper Potomac River Commission, has been informed by State Senator Robert B. Kimble that he will serve as chairman of the new investigative body. Hitchins said last night he understood his commission was in the mail now but he had not yet received it. He reported that the first meeting will be held in Cumberland and probably will be arranged for sometime this month.

This new non-salaried commission was created as a result of the passage at the last session of the General Assembly Senate Joint Resolution No. 11, introduced by Senators Neil C. Fraley and Kimble.

The resolution calls upon the commission to give particular emphasis to the problem of the road alongside the dam and providing a wholesale supply of water to the Town of Westernport as well as the question of future status and operation of the dam. The commission also is instructed to submit its recommendations to the General Assembly. These probably will go first to the Legislative Council which viewed the dam and discussed the problem on a visit to Western Maryland in August.

In their resolution, Senators Fraley and Kimble note that the Upper Potomac River Commission was created by act of the Legislature back in 1935 to exercise control over the Savage River Dam.

This agency is still in existence, but the resolution cited that it has little power and no funds for alleviation of problems which have arisen. The commission will seek to determine what should be the controlling authority for the dam and determine the source of funds for its operations.

Members of the investigative commission will be the three members of the Upper Potomac River Commission, John J. McMullen and Hitchins, this city, and Lawrence H. Lemmert, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners; Jonas W. Sines, president of the Garrett County Board of Commissioners; Russell H. McCain, chairman of the State Roads Commission; Dr. Robert H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health; Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the State Department of Forests and Parks; Attorney-General Edward D. E. Rollins and J. Alvin Pasarew, director of the State Planning Commission.

Material publicizing the special week also was distributed to the member companies, all of which are scheduling some special activities. Nineteen of the 31 companies were represented.

A luncheon was served by the Mt. Savage Firemen's Auxiliary after the meeting.

Three Boys Arrested For Firing On Town

Three local teen-age boys were arrested by City Police yesterday morning for firing a .22 calibre rifle across the Potomac River into Ridgeley.

City Detective Leo E. Law arrested the trio after he investigated a complaint from Ridgeley residents that the pellets were hitting around Ridgeley Fire Company's hall area.

The three boys, two aged 14 and one 13 years, were picked up at 11:30 a. m. on the river bank near the westbound tracks of the B&O Railroad.

Police released two boys in custody of their parents and another in custody of a friend of his family. The trio will get hearings in Allegany County Juvenile Court.
